Propose European Meeting

Russia Sends Notes Seeking A Conference ToEstablishEuropean Mutual Security Plan

MOSCOW, July 24—(AP)—The Soviet government in notes to the United States, Britain and France today proposed calling a new conference in the next few months to consider setting up a system of collective security for Europe.

The notes said the conference would "include, of course, the United States" and suggested that it would be "useful" if observers from Communist China were invited too.

All European countries interested in attending should be invited to participate, Russia said.

The notes, similar but no identical to the three governments, said the agreement reached at Geneva on an Indochina cease-fire showed clearly that the way was open for agreements on other world problems.

U. S. State Department officials in Washington indicated that the proposal would be firmly rejected after consultation with Britain and France.

The new move was regarded by these officials as an effort to kill the West's plan for a European Defense Community, now that French Premier Pierre Mendes-France, with an Indochina cease-fire in his pocket, is in a position to reach for a showdown on French ratification of the six-nation European army pact. It was recalled that Russia's proposals for an all-embracing European security pact were first advanced at the Berlin four-power conference early this year in an effort to knock EDC in the head. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov first wanted the United States kept out of the Soviet-style European security system, but later gave up that position.

The new Soviet move was no surprise. It had been foreshadowed by an editorial in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, last Thursday which asserted that the Geneva conference should be followed up by attempts to settle other outstanding international muddles, including the disputes over atomic energy, Korea and European security.

The note handed to U. S. Charge d'Affaires Walter Walmsley was 16 pages long and denounced the United States development of atomic weapons as a threat to peace.

Gen. McLaughlin Presents Trophies To Best Company

CAMP McCOY, Wis., July 24—(AP)—Awards to an infantry company and a medical company from Missouri and an artillery battalion from Kansas were features of a visitors' day program at the midperiod of the 35th Infantry Division's 2-week training period today.

A parade of 9,000 national guardsmen from Missouri and Kansas also was a highlight of the day.

The Eisenhower trophy to the best guard unit from Kansas was presented by Gov. Edward F. Arn to Battery B, 154th field artillery battalion, stationed at Marysville. The same trophy for Missouri was presented by Maj. Gen. John C. McLaughlin, Sedalia, Mo., the division commander, to the ambulance company of the 205th Medical Battalion, Kansas City.

The general presented the McLaughlin trophy for the best infantry rifle company in the division to Company E 140th Infantry regiment, stationed at Jackson, Mo.

Gov. Arn, Gen. McLaughlin, Maj. Gen. Joe Nickell, adjutant general for Kansas, and division and post officers watched infantry artillery and special troops of the division march by a reviewing stand and roll by in trucks and jeeps.

The parade was led by Brig. Gen. Frank Dunkley, of Lawrence, Kan., assistant division commander, and staff officers. City and state officials and newsmen from the two states watched from bleachers.

The division will end the field training period July 31 and the guardsmen will return to their homes. There are about 3,500 Kansas guardsmen and about 5,500 Missouri guardsmen in training this year.

First in Series on Traffic Report—

Traffic Congestion Costs City Thousands

On June 7, the City Council authorized Mayor Julian Bagby to hire Traffic Associates, St. Louis, to conduct a traffic survey of Sedalia and submit a report including recommendations for improving Sedalia's traffic conditions.

The council heard that report last Monday night, as given by Joseph J. Feuchter, president of Traffic Associates.

This was a preliminary survey. Another and more detailed one will be made later.

In the meantime, The Democrat is presenting the preliminary report in five installments, beginning with this one today and continuing through Thursday.

This first section deals with the general aims of traffic improvement. The next three will contain specific recommendations for such improvements in Sedalia. The last section will contain long-range objectives.

The first section, prefaced by a letter to Mayor Bagby from Feuchter, is given below.

CONGESTION IN SEDALIA—This is an all-too-familiar scene in Sedalia, which now is experiencing growing traffic congestion. This is what Traffic Associates, St. Louis traffic engineers, referred to in their preliminary report to the City Council last Monday night. Among the recommendations is a clamp-down on double parking. (Johnson Photo)

Dear Mayor Bagby:

Submitted herewith is a report of the Cursory Traffic Survey conducted in accordance with the agreement approved by the City Council and signed by you June 9, 1954.

It behooves the writer to inform you, the City Council, other responsible City Officials and the residents of The City of Sedalia that the relative value of the Cursory Traffic Survey and Report depends entirely on the extent to which the numerous recommendations given in the Report are initiated, implemented, prosecuted and completed.

Needless to say, I believe the very real interest expressed and the cooperation given me by those with whom I came in contact during my visits speaks well for the future success of your traffic improvement project and causes me to look forward with pleasure to assisting you in all ways possible during the coming year.

Respectfully yours,
Joseph J. Feuchter

Cursory Traffic Survey Report

The City of Sedalia has, like most growing urban communities, a dual problem of traffic congestion and accident hazard. It is extremely difficult to provide unimpeded vehicle and pedestrian traffic flow with safety over thoroughfares that were designed and intended for the slower horse and buggy use rather than for the high volume, heavily loaded and higher speed passenger cars and trucks that now attempt to use them. The congestion problem, due in many instances to inadequate vehicle maneuvering or storage space, or both, is evident upon inspection. Traffic accident hazards are not so obvious, but the police department accident reports, which admittedly do not include all traffic accidents, show that over 670 accidents involving over 127 injured people and 7 fatalities were reported for the 18-month period beginning January 1, 1953. This is a monthly average of over 37 accidents with 7 injuries. 491 accidents, or over 73 per cent, occurred on only six streets — Broadway, Main, Ohio, Third Street, Osage and Lamine. Over 50 per cent on the first four named streets.

Traffic congestion, delay and accidents cost the people of Sedalia, directly or indirectly, thousands of dollars per year. The increased cost of motor vehicle operation, the increased cost of local distribution of merchandise and materials because of stops, delays, accidents and time lost, as well as the community and individual cost of treating those injured in traffic accidents, is eventually paid by the consumer and taxpayer.

Many merchants have the erroneous impression that traffic congestion indicates traffic volume and therefore greater business potential. However, urban traffic congestion and the lack of suitable and adequate parking facilities often results in the decentralization of business. This movement to locations of less congestion and more suitable parking facilities has the general effect of weakening the tax base necessary to meet the increased cost of municipal expansion and operation.

There are several factors in improving traffic conditions in a municipality, the most important of which are:

1. Realization of the need, by City Officials and the populace, for

Air Force Man Killed In One Car Accident

Wreck Resulted From Car Leaving Road On 65 Saturday Night

One Air Force man waws killed and another slightly injured in a one car accident about three miles north of Sedalia on Highway 65, when a car they were riding in left the highway on the D. W. Scotten curve and overturned. The car an old model Chevrolet was badly wrecked.

Dead is A/3C Grover C. Jordon, 21, of the 340 Maintenance Squadron, Sedalia Air Force Base, A/3C Pordon according to appers on his person indicated his home was Pritchett, Colorado.

Injured was A/3C Vernon E. Hooper, 22, also of the 340th Maintenance Squadron, Sedalia Air Force Base. Hooper who said he was the owner and driver of the car said his home is in Williamsville, Missouri.

Jordan, according to Dr. J. M. Rodeman, acting coroner, was dead upon arrival at the Bothwell Hospital. He was taken to the hospital in the Ewing ambulance.

Hooper reported to Sgt. Ernest W. Van Winkle, of the State Highway Patrol, he was driving north on the highway and started to make the curve pulling to the right. He said something seemed to catch under the front end of the car and he was unable to pull it back onto the pavement after it had driven off on the right shoulder, and the car went down the enbankment, rolled over breaking down an old wire fence and stopped on its side in a field of the Scotten farm.

Hooper apparently was thrown from the car as he was lying on the ground beside the car when it was pushed upon its wheels. He was unconscious when the ambulance was called to take him to the hospital. Dr. Rodeman said Jordan apparently suffered internal injuries which caused his death as a large bruised and skinned place was on the right portion of his abdomen. His nose had a slight cut. There were no other head injuries.

Hooper told the officers that he and Jordan were enroute to Sweet Springs to spend the evening when the accident occurred.

Elections Boards Named, to Vote August 9—

Methods of Elections for ASC Committees And Candidate Qualifications Are Changed

A new procedure is being used in the election of township and county committeemen to carry out the field work of the 1955 government farm program, currently known as ASC or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation.

A recent directive of the United States Department of Agriculture sets up County Election Boards. This board in Pettis County consists of Merle Vaughan, county agricultural agent, as chairman; Oscar DeWolf, county supervisor, Farmers Home Administration, and William P. McCune, president, Pettis County Farm Bureau, members.

This county board has been instructed to name three-man township election boards from among the eligible farmers of the 16 townships. These township election boards will conduct the ASC elections in their respective townships.

Requirements of Office Holders

Requirements to hold office on the township election board or on township or County ASC committees are: (1) residing in that township or county; (2) being eligible to vote in that area; and (3) not holding or having been candidate for a major county office during the current calendar year.

In addition present ASC township committeemen cannot hold office as members of the township election board, neither can they be reelected to the township ASC committee if they have served on that committee during part or all of each of the three immediately preceeding terms of office of such committee other than as an alternate in the temporary absence of a regular committeeman.

Such township committee men who are ineligible to be reelected in their township could serve on the county committee if elected and county committee men who have served three consecutive terms in that capacity could serve on their own township committee.

Eligibility to vote depends on interest in a farm in that township and whether an ASC payment or grant will be made on the farm thru the current program or if there is being carried out on the farm one or more of the current program practices approved for the state by the State Committee.

Election August 9

All township elections will be held at 8 p. m. on Monday night, Aug. 9, while the county convention will be held at 10 a. m. on Saturday, Aug. 14.

There are three methods of making nominations for the township ASC election. The township election board must make up a slate of at least 10 eligible persons and that slate will be published along with the notice of the election at least five days ahead of the election date. Names of others willing to serve may be added to the slate if they are presented to the township election board chairman six days before the election and on petitions signed by 10 or more eligible voters. Nominations can also be made from the floor at the election.

The newly elected chairmen and vice-chairmen of the township ASC committee will be the delegate and or alternate delegate to the county convention where the three-man county committee is elected.

New Evidence Indicates John Left West Of His Own Accord

BERLIN, July 24 (AP)—New evidence indicated tonight that West Germany's security chief—sometimes called "the man with a thousand secrets"—may have gone over to the East German Communists on his own choice.

A West Berlin border guard said Dr. Otto John, 44-year-old counter-espionage head, drove into East Berlin with a doctor friend Tuesday night although they were given the usual warning that they were crossing into the Soviet sector.

The customs guard's information was reported to police less than 12 hours after a man identified as John on the East German radio announced his defection to "Germans of the East."

The West German government has said its top antisubversive activity official was kidnaped by the Communists. The U. S. High Commission said yesterday John was "trapped or forced" to go East and is being held in the Soviet sector.

The border guard said after he cautioned John and his companion, Dr. Wolfgang Wohlgemuth, 48, that they were entering East Berlin, both men laughed and replied:

"That's where we are heading. We are going to Charity Hospital."

The car was owned by Wohlgemuth, described by West German officials as "an active Communist," who left a letter saying John was crossing to the East voluntarily and did not want to return.

In the wake of John's apparent defection, first details reached West Berlin of a reported wave of arrests of East Germans suspected of working for Allied intelligence agencies.

Information Bureau West, a West Berlin tipster service, said Communist police arrested seven or eight employes of the East German Foreign Ministry and made other arrests at East German government headquarters in the Soviet sector.

In Bonn, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer ordered a sweeping loyalty investigation of all officials in the West German government who knew John.

One source said hundreds of officials, including some higher-ups were being checked.

This source said "there may be repercusions in the government ministries soon as a result of John's disappearance. John was very close to a number of high officials in the government."

The loyalty check was taken in Bonn to mean that Adenauer and other West German leaders now privately accepted the Communist claim that John deserted. Publicly, however, the government clung to its statement that John was abducted.

The case continued to produce a welter of unverified reports, including one that John had leaped from the third floor window of a house in East Berlin when he was under guard by Communist security police.

The Frankfurt newspaper Abenpost carried the report without giving its source and said John was injured seriously or killed in the leap. There was no confirmation in Berlin.

Dynamite Charge Kills Seven Men In Boat Accident

SAVANNAH, Tenn., July 24 (AP)—A dynamite charge blasted off on the bottom of the Tennessee River today and ripped through a drill boat on the surface. Seven men were believed dead.

The bat crew was drilling holes and laying dynamite for a Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. line under the river.

The crew had drilled one hole near the west bank and packed it with dynamite and was drilling a second hole when the explosion came.

Joe Ham, district superintendent for Tennessee Gas, said the crew apparently drilled into a hole that already had dynamite in it.

A supply barge, loaded with 5,000 pounds of dynamite, was tied to the boat. It didn't explode. The boat was badly damaged but stayed afloat.

Milton Swaim, 28, apparently was the only survivor. Swaim said there were seven other men aboard. He said they apparently either drowned or were blown to bits. The boat usually carried a crew of eight.

Charlie Roberts, funeral home operator here, said one badly mangled body had been removed from the drill rigging.

The victim was tentatively identified as Buck Pearson of Birmingham, son of H. W. Pearson whose drilling company was handling the job.

Truck, Car Sideswipe; Perryville Man Dies

US Waves Big Stick At Reds

Aircraft Carriers Sent To Protect Hunt For Crash Victims; China Is Blamed

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—United States, waving the biggest stick quickly available, has ordered two aircraft carriers into waters south of Red China's Hainan Island to protect search and rescue operations after the shooting down of a British airliner. Secretary of State Dulles hotly charged that two Red Chinese fighters deliberately destroyed the big craft.

The order to the carriers was issued by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and it was announced in a statement today by Dulles. Dulles branded the destruction of the airliner an act of "barbarity" for which he said Communist China "must be held responsible."

He announced that further action would be taken by the United States but did not say what it would be.

The combination of the Wilson-Dulles moves, however, made it clear that the American government was making a show of power to impress upon the Reds the gravity with which the incident is regarded.

Outraged government leaders, furthermore, took the position that the attack on the passenger aircraft by two fighters about 30 miles south of Hainan Friday gave the lie to Communist talk about peaceful coexistence in the wake of the Red Chinese-French negotiations to end the Indochina war. Dulles has contended that the agreement did not mean any basic change in the nature of the Communists.

Three Americans were reported killed in the crash landing of the big C54 Skymaster plane which Dulles declared was "deliberately shot down by two Chinese Communist-based fighter aircraft about 30 miles south of Hainan Island."

Three Americans were rescued in a combined United States-British-French operation which had ships and planes searching the area. There were eight survivors in all out of a total of 18 to 21 persons aboard the airliner.

Dulles reported the relief operation and U. S. participation in it and then announced:

"The secretary of defense has issued orders directing two United States aircraft carriers to proceed to the scene and to cover and protect further rescue and search operations by United States ships and aircraft in the vicinity of the spot."

The Navy identified the carriers as the Essex-class carriers Hornet and the Philippine Sea. They have been based in the Philippines. The Hornet and Philippine Sea carry crews of about 2,000 each and are equipped with jet fighter planes.

Based on reports from Consul General Julian F. Harrington at Hong Kong—the plane's destination on a flight from Bangkok—Dulles said that there were 17 passengers and four crewmen aboard. News reports from the Far East had given the total previously as 18 or 20 persons.

The three Americans lost were listed as Leonard Lee Parish of Iowa Park, Tex., and his two sons, Laurence, 4, and Phillip, 2.

The survivors included two other members of that family—Mrs. Parish, who sufefred a broken left collar bone and is reported in a state of shock, and a daughter Valerie, 6, who suffered only minor abrasions. The third American among the survivors was named as Peter S. Thatcher of Stonington, Conn., whose condition was described as satisfactory following removing of a small piece of metal from his left thigh.

Those three were among survivors taken to Hong Kong by an amphibious U. S. Air Force plane from Clark Field in the Philippine Island.

Dulles said the attack on the Cathay Pacific commercial airliner was a "wanton" assault by the two fighter planes. He said the British government had sent word that it had ordered "a strong protest" to be made by its diplomatic representative at Peiping, the capital of Red China.

It appeared, however, the United States was taking a much stronger and more angry line of the incident even than the British government.

New Jersey Pilot Wins Air Exposition Race

DETROIT, July 24—(AP)—Swishing from suburban Los Angeles to Detroit in 3 hours, 27 minutes and 13 seconds, Lt. Charles J. Young of the New Jersey Air National Guard today won the feature race of the Seventh International Aviation Exposition.

The last of 14 competitors off in California, the Montclair flier was first in. His average was 560.006 miles an hour—a new record for the 1,945.6-mile jet dash.

The unemployed Korean veteran did it in an old-style Sabre, an F86A. As 40,000 spectators cheered his victory, Young told reporters he hoped the triumph would help him land a job. Before Korea he was a salesman for a brokerage house.

The winner's speed cut 23 seconds off the old record for the same distance, set in 1951 Bendix Trophy race by Col. Keith Compton, whose time was 3:27.41. That, too, ended in Detroit.

Vote Controls For Wheat By Thin Margin

Pettis County Votes Against Controls Which Barely Pass

Pettis County farmers went against the wheat controls by a vote of 89 against and 51 for. Forty challenge votes were cast.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department announced unofficial returns in tabulation of votes by states in a farmer referendum on quota controls for the 1955 wheat crop included:

State	Yes	No.	Pct. Yes
Arkansas	334	12	93.8
Kansas	28,842	10,802	72.8
Missouri	5,070	4,168	54.6

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's wheat growers have voted once again to accept controls on their next year's crop — but the margin was the thinnest ever.

The outcome means the government will continue paying high support prices for wheat — somewhere between 75 and 90 per cent of parity. The rate is not yet decided.

But it also means that, in Secretary of Agriculture Benson's own terms, controls on what the farmer can plant in 1955 will be the toughest ever.

Growers supporting controls cast 73.3 per cent of the vote in yesterday's referendum, the Agriculture Department calculated early today. Since a favorable vote of 66.7 per cent was needed to continue controls, the margin was thin indeed — much slimmer than was expected from advance indications.

Some 267,000 farmers voted—a light turnout. Nearly a million were eligible by virtue of planting more than 15 acres of wheat. The outcome was in doubt until North Dakota came in with a whopping majority of "yes" votes — 46,206 to 2,073.

Had controls been rejected, the support price of wheat would have dropped to 50 per cent of parity—the standard said by law to give farmers a fair return for their produce compared with their production costs. But farmers would have been able to grow as much wheat as they wished.

The "yes" vote means high supports but stricter-than-usual controls on what farmers can plant.

The referendum was held under a law which provides for rigid acreage controls whenver the supply of wheat on hand is above "normal."

It was the smallest "yes" percentage ever rolled up in a wheat program referendum and compares with 87.2 per cent favorable last year, 82.4 per cent in 1942 and 81 per cent in 1941.

The unofficial totals — complete, official figures won't be available for three or four weeks — show that 195,801 farmers voted for the control program and 71,303 against. One year ago the vote was 390,221 "yes" and 57,221 "no."

Attempt To End Stalemate

Johnson Offers Plan To End Marathon Senate Session But Arguments Continues

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—The Senate, locked in dispute over an administration bill to overhaul the atomic energy law, recessed at 9:48 p. m. (CST) tonight until Monday after an almost continuous session lasting just short of 86 hours.

A last effort to obtain a unanimous consent agreement to curb the marathon debate collapsed when Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore.) objected to the proposal made by Democratic Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas.

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, set off a new wrangle in the Senate tonight by proposing an agreement to limit debate on the administration's atomic bill so the Senate's marathon session could be ended.

Johnson ran into an immediate crossfire of objections from some members of his own party and asked that the proposal be laid aside temporarily while it was discussed in private.

He said if it appeared that the proposal, with some changes, would meet approval of all the senators, he would call it up again.

This let hanging the attempt to find some way of curbing debate that has been going on almost continuously for 84 hours at 8 p. m. CST. The move came amidst determined effort to work out some compromise to end the stalemate, with senators holding a series of huddles on and off the Senate floor.

Johnson advanced his proposal after Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California had tried repeatedly and without success during the day to get an agreement to curb debate.

Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash) asked Johnson specifically whom he had consulted before introducing his proposal.

Johnson answered that he "doesn't need to consult with anybody. Each senator can object."

Pressed by Magnuson to identify those he had sounded out, Johnson mentioned Sens. Gore (D-Tenn) a leader in the fight against the bill, and Sen. Clements (D-Ky), the Democratic whip.

Magnuson protested there was insufficient time for him to make up his mind on the proposal.

At that point, Johnson said he wanted to withdraw his proposal "because it is obvious it will be objected to." But the withdrawal did not stick.

The unanimous consent agreement Johnson proposed would limit debate on amendments to the bill to two hours each, beginning Monday, except that six hours of debate would be provided for on each section dealing with atomic patents.

The agreement also provided that no amendment would be in order unless it had been filed before 6 p. m. CST tonight.

After all amendments were disposed of under the agreement, a motion to send the bill back to committee, and thus kill it, would be in order. Debate on such a motion would be limited to four hours.

Major objections were raised to Johnson's provision that no amendment would be in order unless it had been filed before 6 p. m. tonight.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, offered to allow eight hours of debate on amendments relating to the controversial patent section.

Knowland also said acceptance of the proposal would mean the Senate could adjourn until 10 a.m. Monday with sessions then running "to perhaps 9 or 10 o'clock" at night.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) suggested that the Senate recess for an hour in an effort to work out an agreement that would be satisfactory to all. Johnson proposed to Knowland, however, that a 30-minute recess be taken.

But Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) suggested instead that Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) go ahead with a speech he had ready and said that, while Hennings talked, senators could consult about the debate-limitation agreement.

Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) told newsmen he had informed Johnson that "if the unanimous agreement is offered, I would object." Alone objection would kill Johnsn's debate-limiting plan.

Morse said he made the statement when Johnson took him aside and asked his position.

While most of the opposition to the atmoic revision measure has come from the Democrats, Johnson told the Senate, "through many decades my party, the Democratic party, has been a truly responsible party."

"There are times that call for responsible actions by responsible parties composed of responsible men," the Texan said, adding that: "The hour is here for each of us to exercise responsibility."

Mightiest Defense Project Nealy Completed

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

AGUSTA, Ga. —The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's Savannah River Plant, the mightiest single defense project ever built in America, is nearing completion.

There's now less than a year to go on some major construction. Eventual cost will be $1.4 billion.

Already the complex network of completed plants is turning out great quantities of the mysterious unclear products needed for hydrogen and atomic bombs, and perhaps, some day, atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

Less than 12,000 construction workers, on a 40-hour week, remain, down from a peak of 38,500 men working a 54-hour week.

Close to 7000 persons are now employed in the actual operations of the vast plant which occupies 200,646 acres of what was formerly pastures, crop-lands and woods. That's only 200 operating personnel short of the total number needed for full-blast production.

All of the 6000 persons who formerly lived in the area have been transplanted to neighboring communities along with 5300 graves of their kin. Only about 20 of the old stores, barns and homes in the former community of Ellington are left standing. They are used as offices, warehouses or will soon be sold for salvage.

Maximum security naturally blankets every phase of the plant's operation. However, Curtis A. Nelson, AEC manager, gives an enthusiastic general report.

He says it is turning out nuclear materials approximately according to the original schedule. No major production bugs have crept in. In several cases, where the pilot plant stage of production of new materials has been skipped, the original plant designs and processes have proved successful.

Working relations with the du Pont company which built and operates the plant are excellent, he reports. No labor troubles have interfered with production.

The city of Augusta and adjoining communities have successfully absorbed the social and economic impacts of the plant.

The changes which have taken place during the past two years, when this reporter last visited here, are drastic. Then swarms of construction workers jammed the newly-constructed four-lane highways. Innumerable pieces of huge earth-moving and construction machinery moved about with great noise and confusion. Gigantic sandy scars, where unbelievable yards of earth had been excavated, covered the landscape.

Tons upon tons of construction materials were piled all over the place. There were deep, raw holes in the ground where foundations were being poured.

Today it is all different.

Lush green growth covers the sandy scars. Everything is as neat as an Army camp. Only smoke pouring from tall chimneys and the surprisingly few cars parked near each plant reveal activity inside.

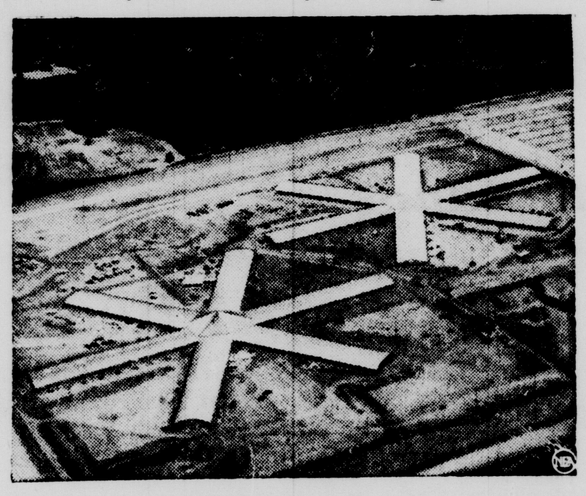

Relatively few people are needed for the manufacture of nuclear materials. And the violence of the chemical and physical reactions involved is contained within the immensely thick gray concrete walls and torturously-bent piping arrangements.

Apparently to prevent possible chain-reaction explosions, and for best security from air attack, units of the plant are built on individual, widely-separated plots.

As you drive over the maze of new roads connecting individual plants their huge unintelligible shapes spring at you around each curve and over each hill.

The visitor can only wonder about the strange processes going on inside which could dictate such unreasonable forms. One is 90 per cent a maze of pipes. Another is built around a huge geyser of water which spews into a big reservoir, fed by the Savannah River which borders 27 miles of the site.

The only structure which makes sense is the new air-conditioned administration building housing both the du Pont and AEC operating employes. Du Pont construction people still occupy the original offices built like the spokes of a wheel.

CONSTRUCTION OFFICIALS occupy these star-sharped buildings at Savannah. Unhunted woods beyond teem with vild game.

The most incongruous aspect of the area is the teeming game which has grown up in the unhunted fields and the great schools of fish which swim lazily through the unfished streams.

This new life is the odd by-product of the greatest single facility for achieving mass destruction ever built by man.

Soviet Reclaims Refugees

TOKYO (AP)—The Russians and their descendants who filed the Communist Revolution years ago apparently are being cleared out of Communist China. A Pieping broadcast heard here said "Soviet residents in China have warmly welcomed the recent decision of the government of the U. S. S. R. to take them back to the homeland Soviet citizens who have been living in China."

Russia made a pitch to ge back the White Russians in China even before the Communists took over there. Some went back after receiving assurances of fair treatment. Enough got back to China guarded letters painting grim conditions in Russia to discourage any great exodus. Many White Russians, with the help of the International Relief Organization, got out of China before and after the Communist conquest of the mainland. How many remain is not known.

UP YOU GO—An Ashland, Ky., contracting company painted this 90-foot flagpole in one hour. They put the painter in a bucket seat attached to the cable of a truck crane boom. He was hoisted to the top, and lowered slowly as he painted.

Radar Needed?

OMAHA (AP)—The cab driver snorted with disgust at a message heard over his two-way radio.

"That's the third time today our operator has had to tell a driver where those apartments are."

"What's wrong with that?" asked his passenger.

"They're right across the street from our office," replied the cabbie.

"The world doesn't owe me a thing," the veteran showman says. "I've got my health, my memories, what else could a man ask at my age?"

After appearances on several recent TV shows Oakland said:

"I tell you, when I heard that applause again a chill went up and down my spine."

National Guard Notes—

Fifth Army Commander Makes Inspection of 35th Division

Gen. William B. Kean, commanding general of the Fifth Army, made an inspection Tuesday of the units of the 35th Infantry Division, Missouri National Guard, training in the field at Camp McCoy, Wis. He was accompanied by the division commander, Maj. Gen. John C. McLaughlin, Sedalia, and Brig. Gen. Alvin W. Hughes, post commander.

First stop was the special troops recruit training school, where Gen. Kean saw the newest guardsmen learning basic medical subjects, sighting and aiming and being oriented in the history and heritage of the 35th Division.

Shortly after, the Fifth Army commander arrived at a demolition school area, where troops were being instructed in use of explosives and proper safety precautions.

He got a second look at the engineers' field training at a grove near a lake, where a transom for a 50-ton capacity steel bridge was under construction. A giant mobile crane pulled the transom into an upright position, and teams of men practiced assembling and disassembling various parts.

Gen. Kean also inspected an artillery range and other weapons ranges. He also listened briefly to a lecture on camouflage being given to a medical clearing company. He later expressed pleasure at the progress being made by the division in field training this summer.

WOJG Jack Meyers, Sedalia, division headquarters, in charge of mimeographing and other administrative clerical work at Camp McCoy, reports that the weather has been excellent at the camp. One night the mercury dropped to 64.

The clerical office is being kept busy. More than 10,000 sheets of paper were run through the mimeograph machine in 4½ hours one afternoon, most of them both front and back. Running the machine is Cpl. Thomas M. Lee, with M/Sgt. James W. Atkins in charge of publications. Both are Sedalians. Each day a two-page bulletin, The Santa Fe Express, is put out by the mimeographing staff.

Other Sedalians working in the office include Sfc. Harold R. Yeager, typing special orders, Cpl. Billy G. Schilb, typing the daily bulletin, and Pfc. Harold Bishop and Pfc. Eldon O'Neill, typing endorsements and miscellaneous letters and memorandums. All are of the division's, headquarters stationed at the Sedalia Armory when not in training.

Tony Zale, former world middleweight boxing champion, was one of the referees for the division's boxing tournament at Camp McCoy last week.

Zale is a sergeant with an MP training unit on active duty at the camp for two weeks.

One of the judges is Cpl. Joe Rima, Kansas City, a Golden Glover of note several years ago. Zale and Rima gave an exhibition bout Friday night.

Zale first won the middleweight title in 1940. He lost it in 1947, regained it and lost it again in 1948. He is now an instructor at the Chicago Catholic Youth Organization.

The 9,000 division troops paraded Saturday before officials and visitors from their states at the training camp.

Gov. Edward F. Arn of Kansas was among the group of 60 visitors. He was greeted Friday by a military band and a 19-gun salute. The division will finish its two-week training period July 31.

US Reaches 2 Conclusions On Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration has now reached two basic conclusions about the Indochina peace settlement at Geneva:

1. If the United States and its Allies act quickly and decisively they can take military, political and economic measures which should save the rest of Indochina from Communist conquest either by a new open aggression or by subversion.

2. Just because Russia and Red China agreed to an Indochina settlement, this does not provide any basis for believing the Communists will now agree to desirable Korean, German and Austrian settlements or to disarmament and atomic bomb control systems.

These points stood out in a news conference held by Secretary of State Dulles late yesterday near the end of a hectic week in international affairs. They demonstrated that the American government assumes the cold war is still a very active combat and that Russian talk of sweepingworld settlements is simply propaganda designed to muddle the Western Allies.

Dulles said again that the Indochina settlement was one which the United States did not like, but that in effect it simply reflected the military reality of a situation in which French-led forces were losing and Communist troops were winning the Indochina war.

"The important thing from now on," he said, "is not to mourn the past but to seize the future opportunity to prevent the loss in Northern Viet Nam from leading to the extension of communism throughout southeast Asia and the Southwest Pacific. . . .

"If the free nations which have a stake in this area will now work together to avail our present opportunities in the light of past experience, then the loss of the present may lead to a gain for the future.'"

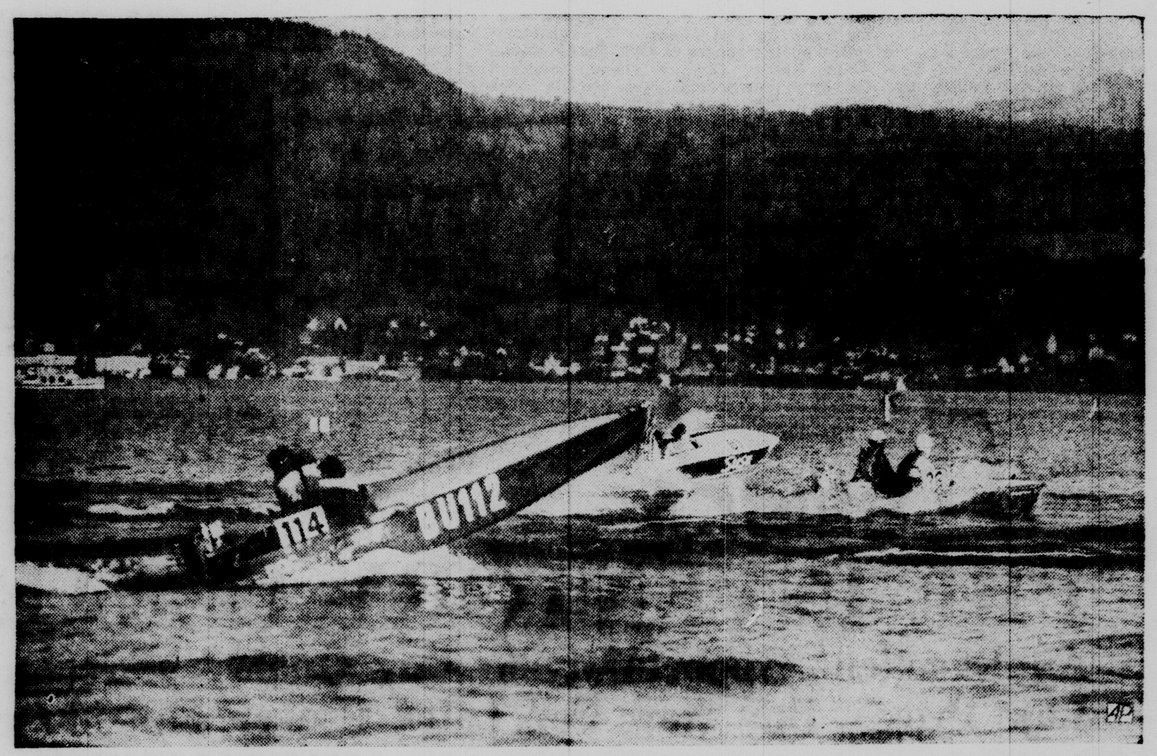

In the wake of this opening statement, Dulles was asked what he thought about a Russian declaration of Thursday that more international conferences should now be held to settle such cold war issues as the future of Germany, Korea and Australia and disarmament and H-bomb control.

Dulles said that the American government was always hopeful of Soviet cooperation. But, he declared, this country has gone a long way in recent meetings to test out the good faith of the Soviet Union and so far the results have been entirely negative.

Ambrosia is a wonderful warm weather dessert. It's easy to make, refreshing to eat. Just arrange layers of thinly sliced oranges and shredded cocoanut, sweeten slightly and chill to blend flavors.

Case of the Too-Silent GI: He Almost Got Murder Rap

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

CAMP GORDON, Ga.—(NEA)—Most crooks believe that when you get in a jam with the police, the best way to beat the noose is to keep your mouth shut.

A unique case in the Army Military Police criminal investigation files here concerns Sgt. Martin Jackson, from a western city, who ended up with good grounds to disbelieve this theory. This is the first published account of his full story.

His troubles began about five p.m., Feb. 23, 1951, while taking tea with his Japanese girl friend. His shoes were off, in accepted Japanese custom, and he felt secure in the belief that he was Ichi Ban—No. 1 boy in the household.

This security was rudely shattered, however, when a Puerto Rican soldier rushed in, made a terrible scene, and caused Jackson to exit hastily from the neighborhood, sans shoes.

Back at his barracks, a half-mile away, he told his sad story to five buddies. But instead of laughing at him, as he expected, they jumped up and prepared to go back to the gal's house to challenge the disputed Ichi Ban status with force.

Jackson put on shoes. One grabbed a club. And the six departed with fire in their eyes and liquor on their breaths.

It was dusk. As the fearless sextet approached their destination they met a Puerto Rican soldier named Fernando Ocasio. He was not the one they sought, but Pvt. Jack Dall who had the club didn't care and began laying it on Ocasio while the rest stood and gaped.

A soldier named Cpl. Wally Mitchell approached to investigate but was warned: "Get the hell away unless you want to get shot."

He obeyed. But another Puerto Rican soldier, Rodriguez Francisco, still not the man they sought, was determined to help a countryman in distress. As he moved toward the struggle he received a .45 slug through his stomach and fell dead.

With that the six men raced back to the barracks, suddenly aware that their little escapade had turned into a cold-blooded murder.

Army CI men—Military Police criminal investigators—who moved in thought they had the case licked by the next day. It looked like a cinch that Jackson was their man.

The Japanese gal had turned over the deserted shoes to the CI men. Although the footwear had the name "William Branch" inside they were easily traced to Jackson. That led to the arrest of his five pugnacious buddies, too.

The five buddies actually talked too much, lacing their statements with tall tales. Only Jackson refused to even open his mouth. But a reasonably clear picture of the events emerged. There was one exception: nobody would say who fired the gun.

Next afternoon Jackson seemed really trapped. Mitchell, the GI who had been frightened off by the warning that he'd be shot, picked out Jackson's voice as the one which had delivered the ultimatum.

Prosecutors assured the MPs that they had an airtight case against Jackson. But Major Cleon H. Newton, chief of the detachment, wasn't satisfied. He wanted to find Jackson's murder weapon and clinch the case.

He and the other MPs decided to trace the route the men had used fleeing back to the barracks. Doing so they decided that the most likely spot for getting rid of the gun was in an Army engineer storage yard the men had crossed. Investigators knew they were looking for a .45 Army pistol.

On a hunch the MPs began exploring the yard with mine detectors, a job which seemed almost hopeless because of the tons of machinery and scrap metal there, interfering with the electronic devices.

After many hours, however, they came up with a spring from a .45. Tons of metals were moved from the yard so the search could be continued more efficiently.

Officials thought Newton and his MPs were crazy, but the investigators kept up the search with the mine detectors for more than two days.

Meanwhile, Jackson maintained his stony silence. The other five were requestioned and their previous statements re-examined. Only club-wielding Dall added a new piece to the puzzle on this go-round. He said he did believe that one of the group had hurriedly buried pieces of the gun in the yard. This spurred the search which finally produced solid results.

All of the parts except the barrel of a .45 were finally picked up. A quick check with the Crime lab revealed that the marks on the empty shell which had been found near the body. This, then, led to a check of gun serial numbers.

Jackson still kept mum. But so certain was everyone that he was guilty, and that the gun would be traced to him, formal murder charges were being prepared. But then the surprise came.

The gun's serial number led to Cpl. Tom Queen, another member of the group, who finally broke down and confessed that he had fired the fatal bullet.

Jackson never did explain his silence. He wasn't covering for Queen because he apparently did not know who the real murderer was.

For his deed, Queen got a 40-year sentence. Jackson is now out of jail for his part. The beaten man recovered, so Dall got a minor sentence. The rest escaped with just a bad scare.

Voices Hope For a Study Of Gas Tangle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hope was voiced today by Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) that President Eisenhower will name a commission to study the "consternation" which he said has been created by the Supreme Court's natural gas decision.

Johnson, Democratic floor leader of the Senate, proposed creation of such a commission in a recent letter to the President. He said it should be composed of representatives of the natural gas industry and the various states and federal regulatory agencies involved, plus "distinguished Americans."

The commission, under Johnson's proposal, would make its recommendations by Jan. 1 so they could be considered by the next session of Congress.

Other developments which have followed the court's June 7 decision that the Federal Power Commission has the duty of regulating the price of all natural gas flowing into interstate commerce:

1. Rep. Rogers (D-Tex) introduced in the House a bill to overcome the effect of the decision by exempting sales of natural gas "as an incident of its production and gathering" by an independent producer not engaged in the interstate transmission of gas.

Rogers has asked the House Commerce Committee for an early hearing on the bill but with Congress heading toward adjournment the bill probably will die with the present Congress. Rogers plans to reintroduce it next year.

2. The FPC on July 16 froze at June 7 levels the price independent gas producers may charge for gas sold for interstate distribution. It was the first step toward making effective the Supreme Court's ruling.

Contracts in effect June 7 must be filed with the FPC by Oct. 1, under the commission order and no increase can be made unless the proposed new rate first is filed with the FPC. The FPC then can suspend the proposed increase pending a hearing.

The order directs producers to apply by Oct. 1 for certificates to allow them to make interstate sales. They may not take on new customers or suspend service to old ones without getting FPC consent.

3. FPC asked Congress to give it an additional $300,000 in a supplemental appropriation bill for handling the added work resulting from the decision.

4. Sen. Johnson of Texas in a letter to Chairman Bridges (R-NH) of the Senate Appropriations Committee opposed the FPC's request for additional funds, pointing out that he had asked appointment of the Commission to make recommendations to the next Congress and also that Texas had asked a rehearing in the gas case.

Johnson said the decision already has caused "consternation" throughout the industry and that an appropriation to enforce it at this time would bring more confusion. Nothing would be lost, he said, by postponing action on such an appropriation until next year.

5. The FPC is mailing copies of its July 16 order to all companies listed in gas purchase contracts filed with it by pipeline companies. Where no address is available, the order is being sent to the pipeline company for forwarding. Some 4,100 names are listed in the gas purchase contracts but there may be more, FPC said.

Alphabet Happy UN—

You Can't Tell The Agencies Without a Program Nowadays

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., July 24 (AP)—"We have about 240 workers," said the man from UNKRA. "We have another 200 that are attached to UNCACK although we now call it kaycack.

"There are also a few people from FAO and WHO.

"What?"

"WHO!"

It may sound like the start of an Abbott and Costello routine, but around the United Nations. Like Washington in the New Deal days you can't tell the agencies apart without a program.

My informant explained: UNKRA means the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency. UNCACK is United Nations Civil Assistance Command, Korea. And kaycack is simply a phonetic speeling of KCAC or Korean Civilian Assistance Command. FAO is Food & Agriculture Organization.

Learning fast, I figured out WHO for myself—World Health Organization. For no particular reason it reminded me of an old song which starts, "Who stole my heart away?"

It was clear that I needed orientation, so I hunted up the U.N.'s bilingual phone book. It's known in English as telephone directory, in French as repertoire telephonique and in U.N. abbreviesque as St-CGS-SER-E-10. That spells out Staff Document, Department of Conference and General Services, Series, No. 10.

This solved most of my problems, with some help from DPI, Department of Public Information. So I now can report that the alphabetical agency abbreviation system, if any, works something like this:

There are roughly three kinds of abbreviations:

First, those used as labels for documents, usually single initials: S-3229, for instance is Security Council Document No. 3229.

Second, those used only in the telephone book: LEG means the Legal Department, but nobody would be irrevent enough to call it that.

Third, those used generally in texts of documents and in conversation. There is a wilderness. Of these abbreviations some are mere initials, like A.C.C.—with periods—for Administrative Committee on Coordination—and IMF—without periods—for International Monetary Fund. At least one consists of telescoped words—ECOSOC For Economic and Social Council.

Some, like IMF, are spelled out in pronunciation—like eye-em-eff. Others, like ECOSOC, are pronounced as if they were words.

Still others may be treated either way—pronounced letter by letter, or pronounced as words. WHO is a good example of this; so are TAC, Technical Assistance Committee, and TAB, Technical Assistance Board.

For anyone who could possibly still be confused, here is a brief guide to some of the livelier abbreviations used at this HQ—Headquarters:

S-G—The way many people refer to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

UNICEF (you - nih - seff)—United Nation's Children Fund. The excess initials were retained when the name was changed from U.N. International Children's Emergency Fund.

UNRWA (un-rah) — U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestine, still very much alive.

UNESCO (you - ness - coe)—U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

UNCOK (un-cock) — U.N. Commission on Korea, predecessor to UNCURK.

UNCURK (un-kirk) — U.N. Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea.

ECAFE (eck - a - fay)—economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

SUNFED (sun-fed) — Special U.N. Fund for Economic Development (of undeveloped countries).

The only one that seems missing is the SPCA. Nope, not that SPCA. I mean the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Abbreviations. That department could easily run three shifts and farm out work to kaycack.

The Great Pyramid of Giza in Egypt is 767 feet square and 479 feet high.

Pentagon Passes Word Against Any Articles By 'Big Team' Members

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon has served notice on members of its "big team" that they would be "ill-advised" to write signed articles for publication.

A memorandum dated May 15 stated the Defense Department's "informal position" that "members of the big team are so busy and so occupied with their heavy responsibilities' that it would be "inappropriate" for them to devote time to writing for general publication.

Members of the "big team" are Secretary of Defense Wilson, his deputy and assistant secretaries, the civilian heads of the three armed services and their assistants, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and top echelon military commanders.

Early Returns Show Shivers Second In Race

DALLAS, Tex., July 24—(AP)—Early returns in today's Texas Democratic primary election showed Ralph Yarborough, with liberal Democratic backing, slightly ahead of Texas' conservative governor Allen Shivers, seeking a third term.

The vote tabulation of the Texas Election Bureau, an unofficial agency, showed Yarborough with 27,029 votes and Shivers 25,892 with 48 of Texas' 254 counties reporting.

Two others in the governor's race were far behind. White-bearded Cyclone Davis had 738, and J. J. Holmes, Austin contractor whose platform included "I'm mad at nobody," had 1,315.

The day was hot in Texas, with temperature of 109 in Dallas alone, but an unusually heavy turnout—estimated at a million voters—came out in the heat.

The state's senior senator, Lyndon B. Johnson, Democratic minority leader in the Senate, seeking his second term, took an early comfortable lead over his challenger, Dudley Dougherty, a wealthy young state representative from Beeville. The early vote was 5,049 for Johnson and 2,022 for Dougherty.

The polls closed at 7 p. m. CST.

In south Texas, known for years for turbulent politics, a district judge ordered Duval County ballots impounded as soon as they are counted. If the election officials do not carry out the order, Texas Rangers were directed to seize the ballots for safekeeping.

Duval County is the heart of the political domain of South Texas political boss George B. Parr, who has been accused of swinging top heavy votes to candidates with his support. At least 12 Texas Rangers patroled the polling places in the five counties of the 79th Judicial District.

Several Democrat - Republican clashes were reported as the Texas GOP held a primary for the fourth time in history. A county Republican chairman in vote-heavy Harris County Houston charged police were aiding in peventing Republicans from voting at two precincts. He also said Democrats were tearing down Republican signs at other precincts and were hearding Republicans into Democratic voting lanes.

Texas Republicans usually nominate in conventions but they cast enough votes in 1952 for the combined Democrat-Republican nominee for governor to cause them to stage a primary this year.

Texas' swing to Eisenhower in 1952 was a basis of the hotly contested race for Democratic nominee for governor. Shivers, who led the vote switch for traditionally Democratic Texas, squared off against Yarborough, an Austin attorney who supported Adlai Stevenson.

The Republican candidate for governor is Todd R. Adams of Crockett, with no GOP opposition.

'54 Summer Behind All Time Record In '36

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP)—Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said today this summer in St. Louis must warm up in August to beat the record of 1936, the hottest on record.

For the period June 1-July 24, the average temperature was 81.7 degrees this year, the same as in 1953 and 1936.

However, the record - breaking 1936 average for June, July and August was 83.4 degrees. St. Louis in that year had 421 heat deaths.

The second hottest summer in recorded weather history here was 1934 with an 83.3 degree average.

During the 1936 scorcher, there were 12 straight days of 100-plus readings in August.

This year on July 14 a new temperature record was established when the mercury soared to 112.3. The heat has been blamed for more than 100 deaths in the St. Louis area to date.

The area has also received only 13.88 inches of the 22 which would be normal for the period from Jan. 1-July 24 this year.

Two Extra Hip Inches Cost Miss Brazil Title

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 24 (AP)—Girls, let this be a lesson—two extra inches on the hips cost Miss Brazil the Miss Universe Title.

One of the judges, who naturally didn't want to be quoted, disclosed today that Miss U. S. A., a perfectly formed Southern girl, won because of the Latin's bulge.

In judging beauty contests, the experts look for the ideal form which is the hips and bust the same, with the waist 10 to 12 inches less.

Maria Martha Rocha, of Bahia, Brazil, measured 36 inches at the bust, 23 at the waist and 38 at the hips. Miriam Stevenson, the 21-year-old South Carolina entrant who won both Miss U. S. A. and Miss Universe titles, measured 36 at the bust and hips and 24 at the waist.

Even with the hip measurement Miss Brazil came awfully, awfully close. The judges had an unprecedented triple tie vote before finally giving the nod to the southern lass last night.

"Miss Brazil's face was the most gorgeous in the contest," said the unnamed judge. "But we just couldn't discount those hips."

Mistrial Is Declared In Tax Evasion Case

ST. LOUIS, July 24—(AP)—A mistrial was declared today in the federal court case of Charles A. Mills Sr., charged with tax evasion, after a 76-year-old juror said he was "physically unable to go any further."

The jury deliverated more than eight hours last night and today before the jurors told U. S. District Judge George H. Moore they couldn't reach an agreement.

Judge Moore told the jurors to deliberate further, saying the trial of the former Ford Motor Co., distrite manager had taken most of two weeks.

Marion Wallace, a retired St. Louis hat salesman, then told U. S. Marshal Les Davison he was ill. The jurors and judge returned to the courtroom and Wallace said he couldn't continue. Judge Moore discharged the jury.

Mills, charged with evasion of $13,111 in taxes during a three-year period starting in 1948, will face a new trial. No date was set.

Will Dedicate Cabin

SMITH CENTER, Kan., July 24 (AP)—The cabin where Dr. Brewster Higley wrote the words to the Kansas state song will be dedicated tomorrow with Gov. Edward F. Arn the main speaker.

Special guests will be many of the children delivered by Dr. Higley. The famous song, which was subject of a lawsuit over its authorship after it regained popularity in the 1930s, will be sung by the Harlan sisters of Smith Center, Mrs. Emmett Womer and Mrs. Sam Wagner.

Charges Demo FHA Officials Caused 'Mess'

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) touched off an angry Senate row today by charging that top housing officials put in by Democrats were responsible for "this great mess" in the government-insured housing program.

Under a challenge from Sen. Maybank (D-SC), Capehart named half a dozen housing officials he said were guilty of "mismanagement, windfall profits or collusion."

At one point Capehart said that Majority Leader Knowland (R-Calif) was backing a Democratic attack on recent Republican-appointed officials. Knowland denied this quickly.

And Capehart, under questioning by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn), conceded he had been wrong in 1951 by backing a bill that permitted excessive profits and abuses in the housing program.

He said housing officials and building industry officials "pulled the wool over our eyes."

The roaring exchange interrupted the marathon debate on the atomic bill. It came as the Senate was asked to confirm Norman P. Mason of Massachusetts, as federal housing administrator.

Mason, who has been serving in this post, finally was confirmed without objection.

Maybank said Mason must "use a strong arm" to prevent additional scandals and abuses.

Capehart has been directing the Banking Committee's detailed investigation of multi-million dollar profits reaped through government-insured mortgages on housing projects.

Capehart reviewed some findings of the probe and said the GOP administration "is doing the best we can . . . to clean up this awful mess."

He suggested that "98 per cent of this trouble results from mismanagement on the part of those who have been in FHA since 1934 and '35."

Democrats contended that Republicans who voted for past housing laws as well as some Eisenhower administration officials also were at fault.

Symington Renews Try For Mo. Drought Relief

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Sen. Symington (D-Mo) today again urged President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson to authorize drought relief for Missouri.

In a telegram to the White House Symington called the situation an "acute and major disaster" and stated "the economic condition of thousands of farm families is becoming steadily more tragic."

Benson was asked, in another wire, to take steps immediately to distribute surplus government-owned farm products in the state.

The state has requested the President to declare it a drought disaster area. That would have to be done before any federal relief could get under way.

The Agriculture Department and the President so far have declared disaster areas in 83 counties in Texas, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming.

Symington urged Eisenhower to "act without delay" to help Missouri, where he said "natural resources are being irreparably destroyed."

He asked Benson, in addition to distributing surplus foodstuffs, to institute without delay a beef purchasing program to sustain prices at markets where cattle reportedly are being sent in great numbers because their feed has been burned up.

The senator also requested of Benson "surplus grain and surplus seed distribution programs and intensified credit programs and all other available means of giving necessary relief."

Pakistan Has Extended Ban on Communism

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan has extended its ban on communism throughout the nation, reports from the provinces disclosed today.

Latest reports said the party had been outlawed in Punjab and Baluchistan states. Yesterday the Reds were banned in Karchi, the nation's capital, and eight weeks ago they were ruled out in East Pakistan.

The reports said state police were busy today rounding up Communists, with arrests in Quetta and Lahore.

McClellan Faces First Stiff Test In Arkansas Vote

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 24 (AP)—The Democrats' senior McCarthy-Army prober — Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas — faces his first vote-getting test in 12 years Tuesday against the combined opposition of a former governor, Arkansas' Democratic committeeman and a garageman.

The field seeking the Democratic nomination July 27 gives Arkansans a choice of political paths.

McClellan long has been known for his conservative leanings. Ex-Gov. Sid McMath during both his terms was an avowed supporter of Harry Truman and has the nearly-solid support of labor in this contest.

National Committeman Paul Chambers has campaigned as a "Middle of the roader" between McClellan's conservatism and McMath's liberalism. The fourth candidate garage owner Leonard Ellis, has made no campaign.

So far the McCarthy-Army hearings apparently have had little effect on the voters. Only the first few days of the hearings were televised in the state and they were mentioned only briefly until this week when McMath attacked McClellan's role.

Reports That Navy Is Falling Back In Ship Program

KANSAS CITY, July 24—(AP)—The Navy is falling behind in its ship modernization program and in numbers of trained permanent personnel, Lt. Comdr. Frank A. Manson, Washington, said at a Navy Club meeting held in connection with the Missouri American Legion convention today.

Commander Manson, author and compiler of the navy's history of World War II, said a lack of appropriations for new keels and failure to make military service more attractive to young men were to blame for the lag.

"Russia now has the most active cruiser building program in the world," Manson said. "They have a fleet of 375 submarines and are trying to increase the effectiveness of their naval air arm.

To offset Soviet gains, the commander said, the United States has made considerable progress in technology. As examples, he cited the first atomic submarine, the first fighter aircraft able to rise vertically and the first midget jet fighter.

Val Peterson, federal defense director, was another speaker.

Thousands turned out in downtown Kansas City to witness a colorful parade, one of the features of the 36th annual Legoin Convention which ends tomorrow.

House Group Suggests Cut in Foreign Aid Funds Asked by Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today recommended a 13 per cent cut—$812,213,554—in funds requested by President Eisenhower to finance the foreign aid program for the present fiscal year.

It sent to the House for debate next week a bill appropriating $2,895,944,000 in new cash and $2,312,475,979 in unobligated balances of previously alloted funds—a total of $5,208,419,979—for the program.

The President had requested $6,020,633,533.

Admits Rape Not Whisky Is Real Motive

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24—(AP)—Attempted rape and not an argument over buying whisky led to the strangling of 18-year-old Dorothy Poore, her confessed slayer admitted under heavy police grilling tonight.

Police Capt. John Ambuhl said that Victor H. Lively, 25, who had confessed the slaying yesterday at Clayton, Mo., changed his story under questioning after his arrival here.

Lively previously had said in a written statement that Miss Poore became abusive after he refused to buy her whisky from a bootlegger. His confession had said he blacked out in the argument and found himself throttling her.

But tonight Ambuhl said Lively admitted orally that he had made three attempts to rape the girl, tearing off her blouse and blue jeans. Lively explained he thought Miss Poore was a prostitute, Ambuhl said, but remorsefully concluded:

"I was wrong. She was a nice girl."

The girl's body was found stuffed into a dresesr drawer at the downtown Claypool hotel here last Sunday, two days after the slaying.

In his confession in Missouri, Lively said he choked her "three or four minutes" until she was dead and then sat around in the hotel room drinking for more than five hours. He then stuffed the body of the 5-foot-7 Clinton, Ind., girl into a four-foot dresser drawer and left the hotel.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24—(AP)—Authorities moved today toward fast prosecution of Victor H. Lively for the killing of an 18-year-old girl whose body was found stuffed in an Indianapolis hotel room drawer last Sunday.

They also worked to gather more evidence that might be used against the muscular young Texan in addition to the signed statement he gave to St. Louis County officials soon after he was picked up Friday near Clayton, Mo.

In the statement, he admitted choking Dorothy Poore, a Clinton, Ind., girl graduate who had come to Indianapolis to hunt a job.

Windsor City Park a Gift From Railroad

Formal Ceremony Of Presentation Is This Afternoon

WINDSOR — The citizens of Windsor will soon be able to call their park their own.

At a formal ceremony to be held at 2 o'clock today in the Windsor City Park, G. W. Barriger, Chicago, vice-president of the Rock Island Railroad, will officially present the park to the city as a gift from the railroad.

The 30-acre tract of land, which has been used by consent of Windsor and four surrounding counties for many years, was leased by the city for 99 years in 1938.

The park will be deeded to the city in the ceremony Sunday and will be known as Farrington Park, in honor of J. D. Farrington, president of the Rock Island line.

During the last few years the popularity of the park has increased steadily and the city has made many improvements, including a new tennis court and a softball diamond. About a dozen bench-type picnic tables have been added recently to the wooded area.

Since the leasing of the land, the park has become a site for family reunions, civic group meetings and community recreational projects. A Boy Scout cabin is located there, and the large lake has been stocked by the state conservation commission.

In 1904 when the railroad came through Windsor with its St. Louis-Kanas City line, the lake was built to provide water for steam engines. With the coming of the diesel engine the park's usefulness to the railroad diminished. The land adjoins the line's right of way and is near the railroad station, within the city limits.

A special tax was inaugurated by the city several years ago to provide for park maintenance. Also, a city park board has been planning developments and improvements for the site.

J. A. Comer, vocational agriculture teacher at the Lee's Summit High School, was formerly president of the first Windsor city park board and will speak at the ceremony Sunday on the history of the park.

A new dam for the lake is planned in the immediate future.

L. T. Hoback, president of the park board, and formerly superintendent of schools in Windsor for 25 years, will preside at the presentation. James B. Wilson, mayor of Windsor, will accept the gift for the city.

Windsor is located in the northeast corner of Henry County, near the Johnson, Pettis and Benton County lines.

Strange Things Can Happen On Vacation in Caribbean

By JIM MARTENHOFF

MIAMI, July 24 (AP)—The darndest things can happen on a Caribbean cruise.

It's a vagabond vacation and one thing is certain—there's more fun in the people, you meet than in all the forts, castles and guidebook trips put together.

It can be quite an adventure. The Yarmouth Castle took us out of Miami through five ports in three countries in nine days —a whirlwind trip packed with kicks.

We were primed for adventure at our first stop—Nassau.

There was color there, in the native markets, redolent with the smell of fish and spices and strange foods, and in Dirty Dick's bar, a combination of a British pub and a tropical drinking spot, cool and dim.

There was also a large television set, perched at the end of the bar. It sort of killed the feeling of traveling to foreign shores, especially when Arthur Godfrey's smiling face turned up, complete with snow and electronic razzle-dazzle.

TV will never take the place of Dirty Dick's old barrow service, which is a lot more colorful. Linger too long and one of Dick's employes will load you in a wheelbarrow and take you back to your ship.

But Nassau remains traditionally British — which means conservative—despite TV. Take the shops, for example. Many more established 100 years ago or more. Today they may be selling something entirely different, but no one has seen any need yet to change their sometimes misleading names.

So if you want bone china, or fancy imported dishware, you go to the Ironmongery. For fine, imported fabrics, go to the Bookshop.

And the Men's Shop not only sells building lots, but also ladies apparel.

Everyone is friendly, whether you want to buy or are just looking. An undertaker in Nassau has a large sign in his window, "Visitors Welcome."

But some things have changed. The "Bumboat Buccaneers" — the small urchins who surround a cruise ship and dive for coins thrown in the clear, green water—are a little different.

In the old days we were told, they dove for pennies. Now they ignore anything under a quarter.

Those boys will probably grow up to own their own cruise ships.

In Haiti, you occasionally hear a voodoo drum. But the odds are 10 to 1 it's being pounded by a happy tourist who probably bought it from a so-called backward native at slightly more than 40 times its value. Voodo as a religion in Haiti died out years ago. Now it's only a saleable commodity.

Anyone who goes to Haiti shouldn't miss a trip to the Cabane Choucon, a thatch-roofed, open-air night club where drinks start in the neighborhood of two bits. The decor—and the price—win the admiration of every tourist.

Haiti was pleasant enough so that no one got back to the ship until the wee hours.

Jamaica came next. Kingston, the island metropolis, is loaded with stores and things you just want to bring home. French perfume, fancy fabrics, silverware, bone china, Indian sandals from Kashmir, Swiss watches, German cameras, leather goods, carved woods and potables. With in-bond shops for tourists, there are no duties or taxes, making prices ridiculously low. Everyone dropped sightseeing and stuck to shopping.

It was in Kingston that we discovered Maccauley's Blue Mountain Inn. Mr. Mac is a man with money who likes to cook and bought the place to indulge his hobby.

He serves one meal. If you don't like it you don't eat. You have no choice. The inn is high on a mountainside, with a rushing mountain river making dinner music below. It's open to the tropical air and the scent of the flowers. And the service is old-fashioned British, in odd contrast to the relaxed, tropical surroundings. There are candles on mahogany tables, antique lace and silver and men in green livery with spotless white gloves passing quietly by with huge silver serving dishes. All at not much more than American cafeteria prices.

French, Vietminh Agree to Limit Size of Attacks

HANOI, Indochina (AP) — French and Vietminh delegates to the peace village of Trung Gia agreed today to limit military attacks on each other to regimental strength until the cease-fire goes into effect July 27.

The agreement to stop large-scale fighting during the three-day interim was announced today by the French command. It specifies:

1. Neither side will use battle forces bigger than a regiment in North Viet Nam and limit them to battalion strength elsewhere in Indochina.

2. Both sides will—"as soon as possible"—stop mining roads, sabotaging railroads and cutting communication lines.

3. Both sides will order their troops to stop damaging property or harming civilians in North Viet Nam.

4. The French air force will not bomb Vietminh territory or bases, will use warplanes only to support ground troops and will not use the napalm bomb under any circumstances.

Gen. Rene Cogny, commander of French Union troops in North Viet Nam, told newsmen two days ago he would not push any operations against the Vietminh.

French forces put that into effect yesterday making no attacks anywhere in the Red River Delta, but only defending themselves against harassing Vietminh attacks.

Office Wear--- Pick Clothes To Suit Job

By Alicia Hart
NEA Beauty Editor

On particularly hot days, some girls feel that the humidity offers sufficient excuse for wearing summer play clothes to the office.

The last thing an executive wants to see a woman employe wearing on the job is a backless, halter-type print dress. Off-the-shoulder blouses may look fine at a picnic, but they are absolutely taboo for the office.

Dressy summer dresses, with several petticoats, clash violently with a business background. These dresses should be saved for after-office hours.

Simple cotton dresses in a becoming color are the smartest bet for the career girl. If she feels she must wear jewelry, a plain chalk-white necklace, with earrings to match, will lend a note of coolness and femininity to her office costume.

Business-wise, one of the biggest mistakes a girl can make is to appear at the office with her hair set in pin-curls. This is the pet peeve of both co-workers and executives, who think that a girl who ties a turban around her hair to preserve her hairdo is advertising, quite frankly, that she does not care for her job and puts her social activities first.

South Abell Club Plans Ice Cream Social

The planning of the annual ice cream supper was the most important topic of discussion at the South Abell Extension Club meeting held July 14 at the home of Mrs. E. E. Barrick. The night of Aug. 11 was the date chosen for this event, to be held at the South Abell Community Hall.

Each member of the club will furnish a cake and will also bring dishes and glasses. A committee was appointed to call and remind club members of the date of the supper and each member will invite neighbors. Members of the committee for calling are Mrs. R. D. Erwin, Mrs. Tom Cromley, Mrs. E. E. Barrick and Mrs. Emmett L. Bohon Jr. The evening will be climaxed with the showing of educational films from the Boonslick Regional Library.

Mrs. Rex Paul presented the lesson on health and emphasized the necessity of having a first aid kit in the home with a first aid pamphlet readily available. She gave a report on the cancer film that was shown at the community hall in June. In addition, Mrs. Paul commented on the merits of a child care book in the pocket book editions which is reputed to be a very reliable hand book in the rearing of children from infants through adolescents.

Highway courtesy was mentioned as a means of prevention accidents.

Four members and six children were present at the meeting. Roll call was answered with a demonstration of my most comfortable shoes.

The ice cream supper will take the place of the regular meeting date in August so that the next regular business meeting will be on Sept. 8, with the election of officers as part of the program for that date.

Ice cream stains are usually removed in washing, but if grease remains sponge the spot with carbon tetrachloride and wash in warm suds.

Your Wardrobe

by Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

Shopping for a winter coat should not be a chore, but a thrill. You, of course, should have your needs in mind and more or less the amount you wish to invest in your coat. If at all possible an early purchase is advisable. You have choice of styles, fabrics, colors and if your wants aren't in stock it can be ordered. By waiting, this can't be done. This season you will find new fabrics that are truly luxurious at budget prices. Black will be very important and since we haven't had it in several years it seems more irresistable than ever. Handsome buttons are smart eye catchers on the rich blackness. By selecting your coat early and most shops will keep them for you. You can build your entire wardrobe around your coat and will save disappointment later when you can't find your size in colors that blend with your wardrobe. I have seen this happen season after season so take time out now to shop.

A group of horse pictures with real rope frames would add to the knotty pine walls.

Art Collections, Valuable Asset Of State Society

Among the valuable assets of the State Historical Society of Missouri at Columbia are its Bingham Historical Art Collection and Benton and Fitzpatrick Gallery. According to Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary, works of art from these collections have been shown in many of the leading art museums of this country and two of the paintings were included in the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibit to Western Germany in 1952.

The Bingham Historical Art Collection is named in honor of the famed 19th century Missouri artist George Caleb Bingham, nine of whose works are displayed by the society. Perhaps the best known is his "Order No. 11," a large dramatic scene painted on a linen tablecloth, 1865-68, depicting the murderous enforcement of Union General Thomas Ewing's order depopulating several of the Missouri border counties.

Other pictures in this collection are "Glasgow, Missouri," done in the late 19th century by Cornelia A. Keummel of Glasgow; "A View of Weston, Missouri," painted about 1860 by German born, long time resident of Platte County, Augustus G. Beller; "The Battle of Lexington," by Hungarian artist Domenico, who watched the battle in 1861; eight portraits of well-known early Missourians by Henry C. Thompson, Bonne Terre, now a trustee of the Society; and three local scenes of the Mark Twain Country by Mrs. Walter Griffen of Hannibal. There is also a post-Revolutionary portrait by an unknown artist of Benjamin Howard first governor of Missouri Territory.

Works by the contemporary artist Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri and newspaper cartoonist Daniel R. Fitzpatrick of St. Louis are featured in the Benton and Fitzpatrick Gallery. Benton pictures displayed are the "Negro Soldier" and eight paintings in his "Year of Peril" series done in 1942 for government propaganda purposes in World War II. The Fitzpatrick collection consists of 1,476 of his original cartoons. Also in the gallery are contemporary wood cuts of scenes in Missouri, New Mexico and Louisiana by Fred Geary of Carrollton, Missouri.

Recently added to the society's collections were six colored lithographs depicting the European's idea of life on the American frontier by 19th century German artist Georg W. Fasel; the Harry S. Truman Family by Greta Kempton of New York; and the "Westward March of America," by Walter de Maris of New Jersey.

Double-Ring Ceremony for Patsy Carroll And Dale Lane at Epworth Church

In a double ring ceremony solemnized at the Epworth Methodist Church, Miss Patsy Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Carroll, Green Ridge, route 2, and Mr. Dale Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lane, were married at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Sunday, July 11, by the Rev. Ralph E. Hurd, pastor of the church. White smilax and yellow daisies, with two eight-branch candelibra holding pink and white candles, formed the setting for the wedding.

Miss Irma Lee Skidmore, Sedalia, at the organ, played "Perfect Love" and other nuptial music preceding the ceremony and accompanied Mr. Robert Norton, St. Louis, who sang "Always," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The candles were lighted by Mr. Harry Joe Runge, Sedalia, route 5, and Mr. Harold Lee Roy Skidmore, Sedalia, who also served as ushers.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a gown of white nylon Chantilly lace over white taffeta. Her veil was of fingertip length and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and red rosebuds. Her double strand of pearls was a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Shirley Benware, Green Ridge, as maid of honor, wore a green net gown over taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisies.

Miss Frances Norfleet, Houstonia, bridesmaid, wore a net gown over yellow taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of orchid daisies.

Mr. James Gottschamer, Sedalia, served as best man and Mr. Dale Norfleet, Sedalia, route 5, was groomsman.

Melody Swope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Swope, 217 East Sixth, as flower girl, wore an orchid net dress of taffeta.

Danny Ray Eckles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eckles, 1316 South Osage, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride was attired in a dress of yellow nylon with which she wore white accessories and her corsage was of yellow carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of gold rayon with a corsage of white carnations.

Immediately after the wedding a reception was held in the church parlors with guests numbering 75.

A three-tier wedding cake, encircled with light pink roses and fern and ornamented with a miniature bride and bridegroom, centered the bride's table which was covered with a white linen tablecloth. On either side of the cake were three-branch crystal candelabra holding lighted tapers.

Serving at the bride's table were: Miss Irma Lee Skidmore, Mrs. Leon Swope, both of Sedalia, Mrs. Finis Benware, route 2, Green Ridge, and Mrs. James Trainer, Steelville, aunt of the bride.

Mrs. Henry Eckles, sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

Following the reception, the couple left on a trip to Yellowstone National Park and returned to Sedalia July 17. The bride wore for traveling a light blue linen suit with white accessories and her corsage was of red carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Green Ridge High School in the class of 1952 and is employed in the Producers Produce office.

The bridegroom was graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1951 and is employed at Montgomery Ward and Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane are now at home at 302 West Seventh.

Avoid Fads Friends Wear

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Almost every teen-ager looks to her girl friend or teen-age crowd for ideas on what to wear.

That's why, at school proms, you'll see so many girls in dresses of the same color and style. The same dress may flatter one girl's figure and coloring, and look most unbecoming on another girl.

The same thing is true of the curren. teen-age fad – matador pants. And these take a really slim figure in order to look smart and trim.

Just because your pal, Margie, looks terrific in matador pants doesn't mean you will. And besides, you should be developing your own individual taste in clothes. Try to step a little ahead of your crowd, fashion-wise, by "boning up" on the latest styles and colors.

Study your figure and its good and bad points. Then, keeping them in mind, you'll have no difficulty choosing the most becoming type of dress for you.

Choose colors that complement your own skin tones, not because they're your classmate's favorites. Once you've discovered the colors that flatter your coloring you'll hear your friends exclaim, "You look very pretty in blue. Why haven't you worn it before?"

By being a fashion leader, instead of a fashion "copy cat," you'll gain self-confidence and poise as well as a reputation for being original.

Cotton Holds Fresh Look

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Along with nylon and orlon, cotton has joined the washable, permanently pleated class this summer.

Narrow knife pleats are going into plain and printed cottons. A smart, easy-care addition to any wardrobe are cotton dresses with bouffant pleated skirts and high or low necklines.

Separates, the backbone of most wardrobes, have matching blouses which have pleated trim.

And for cool, summer nightwear, you'll find pleated cotton shortie nightgowns. These require very little care and look as pretty as your nylon lingerie.

The tuck and the ruffle are very popular this summer, too. Some cotton dresses have tucked and ruffled bodices, others have rows of ruffles going from neckline to hem.

You can wash any pleated, tucked or ruffles garment simply by swishing them through soapsuds followed by several rinses. Give them gentle handling, though, since rubbing and twisting tend to disturb pleats. Especially if they're permanent pleats.

After washing, let permanent pleats drip dry. Put your dresses on shaped hangers and your skirts on skirt hangers. Then, smooth and straighten pleats with your fingers. When they're dry, you'll see, quite happily, that your permanent pleats require no ironing.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gamber, 1816 South Kentucky, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Adaline, to Mr. Willard Carver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Carver, Florence. Miss Gamber was graduated from Smith - Cotton High School with the class of 1954. Mr. Carver attended high school at Stover. The date of the wedding has been set for August 14.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Griffith, 609 East 16th, announce the engagement of their daughter, Louella, to Pvt. Egbert Shy Kindle, Camp Chaffee, Ark., son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kindle, Otterville.

Dance Pupils Picnic

Mrs. Alene Harper entertained more than 70 pupils of the Harper School of Artistic Dance and their mothers at a picnic Monday morning, July 19, from 9 to 12 o'clock, at Liberty Park.

Games were played after which a picnic dinner was served.

Before arranging cut flowers, allow them to stand for a couple of hours in hot water (bathtub temperature) with a piece of paper wrapped around the blossoms. The paper prevents rapid air movement away from the flowers and reduces loss of water. Hot water moves easier and faster in the stems than does cold.

Ringen-Brushy 4-H Club Has Busy Meeting

The Ringen-Brushy 4-H Club had a busy July meeting at the community house. There were five demonstrations given.

First, however, ideas on how to raise money were discussed. An ice cream social seemed most feasible, and they planned to have it on Friday, Aug. 23, at the community house.

Linda Demand gave a sewing demonstration, Glinda Teter, grooming, Janet Bradley, gardening, Dale Montgomery, grooming and George Schuttee, grooming.

Elwood Schlobohn gave a project report on the woodwork meeting, and Jimmy Bradley gave one on the dairy meeting.

Plans were made for country achievement day, the State Fair, and the local 4-H tour.

Eighteen members were present, and it was decided that the next meeting will be Aug. 11, at the community house, where next year's projects will be discussed.

WHO'S THAT?—It's Charles Brightup, of Liberal, Kans., and his new pal, the owl. The 12-year-old boy found the prairie owl while mowing the lawn and despite the owl's look they get along fine together.

Our Indecision In Indochina Paces Future Avoidance

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Back-Look at Indo-China—The mistakes in handling Indo-China are legion. The Republicans inherited some Democratic mistakes, made a lot more themselves. Only reason for looking back is to avoid mistakes in the future.

Here are some of them—Mistake No. 1 was made by Dean Acheson when he did not demand that France give independence to Indo-China within the French union. Acheson was tough with the Dutch in Indonesia, but not with the French. Reason: The U.S. military wanted bases in France and North Africa . . . so with independence unsettled, the Communists had grist for revolution and the fighting continued. . . . One year after the Eisenhower administration took office it proposed doing something definite about Indo-China. . . . Decision, as in most foreign policy matters, was made, not by Ike, but by his advisers. He remained aloof, though acquiescent. . . . It was decided to make an all-out drive to educate the American public on the importance of Indo-China and possible war. The American public obviously was not ready for war and it became more confused by the "education." There were too many educators and some of their speeches backfired. Dulles called the Geneva conference "the world's best hope." It ended in disastrous retreat. . . . Dulles told the American Legion in St. Louis that China would suffer "grave consequences" if she continued aggression. The Chinese thumbed their noses; the aggression continued. . . . Dulles on Jan. 12 talked of "instant retaliation by means and places of our own choosing." We would not get bogged down in little wars. . . . But Vice President Nixon on April 16 told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that we would send troops to Indo-China if necessary—which meant getting bogged down in a little war. . . . A few days later, April 21, Nixon told a Des Moines audience: "Our policy is to avoid sending our boys to Indo-China or anywhere else to fight." . . . Eisenhower statements added to the confusion. Referring by name to Indo-China, Ike told the newspaper editors in April, 1953: "Any armistice in Korea that merely released aggressive armies to attack elsewhere would be a fraud." . . . In August he told the governors in Seattle that Indo-China was indispensable. "If Indo-China goes . . . the last little bit of land hanging on down there would be indefensible. The tin and tungsten that we so greatly value would cease coming. All India would be outflanked. Burma would be in no position for defense." . . . But as the Chinese war got hotter Ike told a Feb. 10 press conference: "No one is more bitterly opposed to getting the United States into a hot war than I am." . . . Meanwhile, the chairman of Ike's joint chiefs of staff, Admiral Radford, was definitely talking about hot war, was getting ready to send American airplane carriers to Indo-China. . . . Later Radford made a definite proposal to congressional leaders to send the Air Force and the Navy into Indo-China. . . . Simultaneously Dulles asked Congress for a blanket resolution to permit Eisenhower to take any steps necessary in Indo-China. . . . But the President, asked about these steps, was vague. "There is fighting going on," he said, "and of course everybody would like to see it stopped." But he was merely talking about some solution that would be acceptable to us and would stop this blood-letting. . . . So ran his press conference statements. . . . Finally, after months of indecision, came this week's Geneva truce which satisfied nobody except the Communists, least of all was "acceptable to us." . . . So runs the case history of our uncertain diplomacy in Indo-China, a policy of "instant retaliation," "liberation," and "the new look."

Roy Will Be Missed

Roy Cohn will probably miss Washington. He will miss its glamor, the privilege of rummaging through anyone's income taxes, the power of subpoenaing anyone in the U.S.A. and hauling them before television cameras. It's a position few people in the nation attain, so he's certain to miss it.

And to some extent Washington will miss him—though not always with regret. The photographers, the TV men, the newsmen will miss the brash, bumptious, brilliant youngster who made news headlines whenever he opened his mouth.

But most of all Joe McCarthy will miss Roy. TV cameras haven't been focusing on Joe lately. The big show is over, and Joe is deliberately shunning the limelight. Public relations advisers have told him to stay away from it. But if the TV cameras were still on focus last week, the public would hav seen the 27-year-old Roy still influencing almost every move the senator makes.

At a press conference last week, McCarthy was parrying questions. Most he answered on his own. But whenever he faltered, Roy was right beside him.

"How long will you be in Boston, Senator?" was one question.

McCarthy hesitated.

In a stage whisper, Cohn prompted: "Don't know."

Quick as a flash McCarthy picked up the cue.

"We have an awful lot of witnesses to hear in Boston and lots of business to take care of," he said. "We just can't tell now how long it will take."

Wrong Door

Joe smiled. Newsmen knew that he didn't know what witnesses were to be called, or how many. He had left everything to Roy. And Joe knew that they knew it. But they couldn't print it. They had to print his answer.

Cohn moved to one side as McCarthy went on to explain that two members of his staff wanted to quit, though he had asked them to stay.

Roy's face filled with pride at this, then it darkened as Joe was asked who the two men were.

"I can't hear you," replied McCarthy.

He repeated this, waving a pawlike hand. "Sorry, can't hear you," he said.

The press conference was over and McCarthy started to move out the front door. But the vigilant Roy caught his eye. "Not that way," he said.

Newsreel and TV men were waiting outside. A new regime was in vogue. McCarthy was sunning photographers. Obediently he took the tip from Roy, went out the back door.

Yes, the senator from Wisconsin will miss Roy Cohn. The hearings won't be at all the same without him.

Silver Nitrate Preparations Can Cause Skin Disorders

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

A warning to parents and teen-age youngsters is contained in a letter recently received from Mrs. S. She asks whether anything can be done for her 15-year-old daughter who has dark-bluish coloration of the skin on her face.

Th parents thought it was her heart but have been told by their doctor that it has come from using nose drops containing silver nitrate.

Deposits of silver stains in the skin do arise from using silver preparations over too long a period. The long term use of such preparations is therefore to be avoided.

When the skin is troubled with such metallic deposits of silver it clears up slowly, at best. Occasionally it appears to do so without treatment, but the only method of which I am aware was described in the Jan. 5 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association in 1929. Evidently good methods of treatment are hard to come by.

Two mothers are faced with similar problems. One writes that her 15-year-old daughter pulls out her eyelashes and eyebrows with her fingernails. The other asks what can be used to stop her 13-year-old boy from sucking his thumb when he falls asleep at night.

Both of these complaints fall in the class of nervous habits. There is a good chance that both of these teen-aged youngsters are somewhat unhappy and suffering from some feeling of insecurity.

Understanding and affection on the part of the parents, an attempt to surround the youngster with calmness and the avoidance of too much attention to the nervous habits should eventually lead both youngsters to stop their undesirable habits.

A reader who signs herself E.B.O. asks the writer's opinion about having an Angora cat sleep in the room with her children. My opinion is that this is not desirable, and the children and their pets should be separated at night.

Mrs. G. says that her 5-month-old grandson has broken out with a rash which some say is a teething rash and some say is eczema. Most physicians do not accept teething as a cause for breaking out of the skin, and it would seem more likely that eczema or some other condition is at fault. One cannot help but wonder why the grandmother is trying to solve this problem.

Friends Will Believe You If You Sell Yourself Short

By Ruth Millett

Betty has been selling herself short for years. And now even her friends have come to accept her at the valuation she has deliberately put on herself.

Betty never has a good word to say for herself. And she seems to grab at any opportunity for running herself down.

If she drops something, she remarks about how clumsy she is. Actually she is no clumsier than most people, but she has convinced an awful lot of people that she is.

She rarely compliments another person on an accomplishment without insisting, "I could never do anything like that." Perhaps she could if she tried, but she has convinced herself and her friends that she couldn't.

She doesn't seem to know how to accept a compliment without using it is a springboard for self-criticism. Compliment her on a dress she is making, and she'll turn it wrong side out to show you what a sloppy seamstress she really is.

Everyone Has Good Points to Sell

And Betty never forgets any blunders she makes. She will tell about them long after they happened, as though she had to prove to everyone how tactless she is.

Well, Betty has done a first-rate job of selling an idea. She has everyone convinced she is clumsy, tactless and inefficient.

The pity is that she didn't use her salesmanship to sell a better picture of herself.

If she had only played down her faults and mistakes and played up a few of her good qualities, she could have sold friends and acquaintances on a far different kind of Betty.

For, of course, she has her good points. Everyone does. But they can become pretty much overlooked if a person works at selling himself short.

Lobbying

Lobbying for and against the controversial Eisenhower-Benson farm program with its flexible price support levels reached a high point for Washington farm organization pressure tactics.

Farm Bureau Federation threw a hotel dinner for antiparty congressmen in an effort to win them over. U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the food processor lobbies issued statements and used all the force they could muster against the "parity package" deal which the House Agriculture Committee had approved.

In retaliation, National Farmers' Union tried to influence city congressmen, labor unions and consumers' groups in support of higher support levels.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Ross Rizley used his privilege as a former Oklahoma congressman to go right onto the House floor to lobby for the administration program.

Behind The Name

Sen. Lister Hill (D., Ala.) told the story of his somewhat unusual given name in a speech the other day.

His father was a country doctor. Dr. Hill apparently wanted his son to become a doctor, too, for he named him in honor of Joseph Lister, the great surgeon who first brought the discoveries of Pasteur into the operating room.

Instead of that, Lister Hill became a lawyer. But as a member of Congress, he has worked harder than most doctors to promote health and hospital legislation.

Hal Boyle's Column—

Denise Darcel Becomes Weary Of American 'Cheesecake'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Denise Darcel, who once sold Camembert on the streets of Paris, is now weary of American cheesecake.

Not cheesecake, the food—but cheesecake, the art form. She says she positively no longer will pose in the chesty postures that first won her attention when she arrived here in 1946, billed as "the most beautiful girl in France."

Denise thinks that kind of publicity almost busted up her career. She feels there are at least 1,000 girls in America who could match her in the cheesecake realm merely by drawing a deep breath.

"At first I do this because they told me to, and I didn't know better," she said. "Now I know better.

"I have something else. I have talent. I want to perfection my career. I like to be the dramatic actress and to do the comedy. When you can make the people to laugh, you can also make them to cry."

Denise has proved her point. After flopping in Hollywood initially, she got a job behind a sales counter in Beverly Hills and started working her way up in show business all over again.

Today she gets up to $5,000 a week in night clubs, co-starred recently in the film, "Vera Cruz," and now has a top spot in the Friday night Du Mont TV network show, "Gamble on Love."

But if you want to be her bosom buddy, don't praise her figure—even though she has trimmed off 25 pounds. Praise her historical knowledge. She had to quit school and go to work at 12. Now she is brushing up on her education—and her English—by taking morning classes at Hunter College in European and American history.

"I want to be a bright woman," she told me earnestly over a corned beef and cabbage luncheon at the Plaza. "And I just love history. Do you think sometime they will teach me about a gyp?"

"A gyp? What gyp?"

"No, no, no. Not a gypt. Eee-Gyp'—where they have the Peeramids and the dead mummies."

Just to see if she really were studying her history book, I asked her what happened in the year 1066.

"The battle of 'Astings—Weelyam the concurrer, he wheep Eengland," she said triumphantly. "Now you tell me—wot happen in 1649?"

I couldn't think of a thing.

"The Toleration Act by Lord Baltimore was signed," she said. "It geeves religious freedom in Maryland."

Denise, who wore a very high-necked polka dot dress with a demure white collar, insisted she was really vexed about the glamour girl publicity build up which she believes got her off to a false start in this country.

"I was very upset when eet was printed that I said that if monneey grows on trees, then I weel be weeling to marry an ape.

"I reely wan' to marry and have babies, but I don' ask any huspan' to support me. All my life, since I am 12, I work. I much rather to be happy in a small cafe with a man I love than in El Morocco with a reech man I don' love."

Somebody at the table sneezed; somebody else murmured, "God bless you."

"Do you know why they say, 'God bless you'?" asked Denise. "A few hondred year ago when somebody sneeze it was a symptom of the bubonic plague. And people make the sign of the Cross and say 'God bless you,' because they theenk he is dying.

"I theenk I learn that in school—or was it in a taxi? I forget who tole me. But when you make a hiccup, nobody say 'God bless you.' So why if you make a sneeze?"

Since Denise looked so svelte, I told her she really owed it as a matter of loyalty to the fans of her cheesecake past to let them know if she still felt in shape after dieting off 25 pounds.

"Well," she said, laughter lighting up the blue candles of her eyes, "I am a size 14 dress upstairs, a size 10 dress in the middle, and a size 12 dress downstairs—or do you say in the basement? Anyway, where you wear the skirt. The blouse is upstairs."

Odds and Ends By News Staff

IN THE KITCHEN the mother of a small boy could hear the dog growling in the yard. The dog never growled except when someone was around the house he thought had no business there, but when she reached the yard there was the little boy and the dog and everything seemed to be all right.

"What was the dog growling about?" asked the mother, "Was anything the matter out here?"

"No," said the little boy, "There isn't anything wrong."

The mother went back in the house and the dog started to growl again, so this time she looked out the window to see what was going on in the yard, and decided the dog had reason to growl. The little boy was eating the food that had been put out there in the dog's dish.

It wasn't regular dog food. It was some sort of mixture that the little boy's father had fixed up from table left over for the dog and the mother began to wonder about her cooking. Could it be that father was so much better cook than she that the little boy preferred the mixture in the dog's plate to her nice meals. But it certainly didn't take her long to get the youngster away from the dog food and the little dog ate his meal peacefully without having to share it. —H.L.

THE WOMAN put a blanket on the ground and stretched out on it to rest a little and cool off, but it seemed that those little oat bugs that were so numerous here this summer kept getting on her. Of course they didn't bother much at first but when they began to get all over her and bite she thought she had better get up. As she raised up she saw they weren't the little oat bugs at all, they were tiny ants. She stood up and brushed them and then looked at her blanket. It was just a mass of little ants. Picking up the blanket she made a discovery. She had chosen an ant's nest for the place to spread her blanket. —H.L.

TO make a long story short, for the next half hour Lopez treated me to about every hold there is in the Frank Gotch wrestling book I have at home, and some that aren't in it. I stuck to the defensive, mainly because there was nothing else I could do.

I kept being a sucker for the half-nelson-and-crotch combination, and it made me mad, until I suddenly realized it was because Lopez was cross-eyed and when I protected where I thought he was looking, he was going for somewhere else.

Instead of watching his eyes, which had fooled me, I watched his feet, so when he went into what was to be another half nelson and crotch, with a body slam, I got in what had been my strategy from the beginning. I applied a forward chancery, which after trying to put one on Milo all those months, only to have it slip off, worked like a dream against those flowered ears that wouldn't let anything past them.

He couldn't get out and he couldn't get to the edge of the mat, either, as I was keeping him on his feet and only twisting his head so that if I kept up his spinal column would have to come apart. Once and a while you get a real good hold that makes you feel good, if you know what I mean, and I had it. Figure for yourself, the only hold I had really been able to put on in the whole match, this was one that I could really apply and I did.

I felt a tap on the shoulder, but if you think I was going to let that hold go you are more nuts than the referee, who began trying to pry me loose. I couldn't understand what had happened, and all those people yelling themselves coarse didn't help either. At first I thought that Lopez had conceded, but when I did leave go, he started to go around the ring, pleading with the referee, who kept shaking his head, and with the audience, who just booed him. He looked so earnest I wondered if I had done something like putting on a strangle hold, which is strictly not good sportsmanship, although it has been gotten away with on numerable occasions.

ANYWAY, it came out that the referee gave me the bout on a foul, which I didn't want, as that chancery was applied so it would stay applied. Lopez didn't want it either, and kept appealing to the crowd, which booed louder than ever. He slipped under the ropes just ahead of me, looking at everybody as if he hated them as much as they did him, but when we got back to the dressing room, he was as friendly as before. I tried to apologize for the referee saying he had fouled when he hadn't, but he said, "Think nothing of it. Benny threw the high sign when he saw you had me."

"What did he do that for?"

"Buildup, kid," he says. "Winning on a foul ain't decisive, so the fans will be arguing whether you could really throw me or not. Next time we wrestle, Benny is sure of a packed house."

I explained that this was strictly my last match.

"It will make Benny very angry," he said. "You should easy get a hundred and a quarter out of him for a return bout. He'll feature it as a grudge match, with me out to tear you to pieces."

Milo came in and bust out, the way he always did. "Lopez, you why you no th'ow Fed right away?"

"Being a strictly club performer, I like to give the cash customers a show. Besides, I underestimated your kid," Lopez said, not in a bragging way or anything.

The fellows for the rassle royal came in. They all seemed to know Lopez and like him, but they called him Frank and I realized that Pancho was an alias.

One of them said, "I don't see why Benny decided on molasses," and Milo said, "I know, is to keep from slipping," which made the other fellows laugh and establish Milo as a kind of a card.

I left to take Milo's seat by Dawn O'Day.

Benny Lefkoe was already in it, but the guy next to him made his seat suddenly empty and I realized that maybe there was more paper—unpaid-for seats—than I had thought. I no more than sat down before Benny says, "I never thought you could do it. Pancho's flowered ears have been inviting groan-and-grunters for a long time. It's his stock in trade, you might say — and that off eye of his'n."

"I would of preferred to win on a fall to a foul," I said sternly, "especially as that was my last mat engagement."

"But you are already booked," he practically screamed, and I had to explain again about my promise to Betty Jane Blane. While I was telling him, some fellows lugged a barrel through the ropes and opened the bung. You can't imagine how much molasses ran out of it. All around, people were snickering while they thought of how a lot of big guys would look trying to wrestle in it.

THE first guy in the ring slipped and fell, disproving what Dawn O'Day had said, and as Milo was tagging along in the rear and saw it all, I could have crawled under my chair, the way we had deceived him — out of well meaning, of course.

As each wrestler climbed through the ropes and sloshed around, the crowd would laugh, but when Milo climbed through, they really split their sides. Even the other wrestlers couldn't help laughing as he stood there, looking so sad. Dawn O'Day and I were the only ones in the whole place that weren't practically hysterical.

MPs Help Prove Cop-Killing Doesn't Work

But Case of Baby-Faced Helm Was Grim Lesson to Army Investigators

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

CAMP GORDON, Ga. — In a cop's book there's no worse crime than killing a cop. And there's practically no end they won't go to to catch a cop-killer.

So it is with the Army's Military Police and the CI men—criminal investigators — in the Military Police Corps.

That's why the Wilfried Johannes Helm case is drummed into every student in the MP's criminal investigation school here, and its grisly pictures hang in most MP detachments round the world as a stark warning to MPs to be careful.

Although it's one of the most notorious cases in nte CI files here, it's now revealed publicly in full detail for the first time.

Helm, at 18, was a baby-faced, blue-eyed, pink-cheeked lad who could turn on the warmest smile, be disarmingly pleasant and speak beautiful German and English.

A few months ago, in fact, he proved that he had lost none of his charm by sweet-talking a guard in a German jail into doing him a favor and then almost killing the guard in a bold escape plan. It didn't work.

Helm carved his notorious niche in MP history in May, 1948. He was sitting in a Munich jail brooding over the sentence he was serving for stealing and selling cigarets when a brilliant idea struck him. He mulled over details of it, called a guard and said:

"I can't stand my conscience any more. I must confess that my buddy and I killed an American soldier near Rudesheim last year and hid his body there."

After Helm elaborated on the imagined killing, prison authorities reported it to the Military Police. Next day criminal investigator Walter E. Snyder and German detective Franz Eichinger arrived to drive Helm to the scene of the murder to locate the body.

Helm was chained, placed in the back seat of the Army sedan, and watched like a hawk during the trip to Rudesheim.

However, Helm noticed two things which excited him. Eichinger kept the key to the chains in his left pocket. And he kept his brief case which contained Helm's records and some cigarets, in the back, a few inches from Helm's leg.

The search for the non-existent corpse lasted two days in the woods near Rudesheim before Snyder realized the whole thing was fishy and decided to take Helm back to Munich.

Irritated by the hoax, Eichinger had chained Helm's hands tightly behind his back in an extremely uncomfortable position. As they drove along the wide autobahn, Helm finally pleaded.

"Please let me have my hands in front so I can at least smoke."

Eichinger obliged and fished out a cigaret from his brief case for Helm. In doing so, however, Eichinger nudged the brief case within reach of Helm's manacled hands.

It wasn't long before Helm was probing its contents in such a way that the men in the front seat couldn't see what he was doing. In the process, his exploring hands grabbed an object which caused his criminal brain to make an instantaneous decision.

He found Eichinger's pistol. Holding it in two hands, Helm pointed it at Eichinger's head and pulled the trigger once. Eichinger was probably dead by the time Helm fired two slugs into Snyder.

With some quick maneuvering Helm shoved Snyder's body aside, grabbed the wheel of the crazily-turning sedan, turned it on to a side road and then stopped it.

Helm moved fast. He fished the keys from Eichinger's pocket and freed himself. He robbed both men, stuffing Snyder's gun in his pocket. Then he removed all papers bearing on his own case from the brief case, soaked them in gasoline from the tank, put them in the back seat and ignited them.

As he ran off, he saw the car in flames.

Passers-by saw the smoke almost immediately and summoned MPs. But Helm escaped.

It didn't take the MPs long to make a pretty accurate reconstruction of what had happened. Aroused, they set in motion a manhunt which blanketed Europe like none before or since.

Not a community nor hamlet on the continent, including those in the Russian zones, were without handbills describing Helm and telling of his heinous crime. Even recruiting officers of the French and Spanish foreign legions were alerted.

Eighteen days later it paid off. Helm had crossed the border into Belgium and went on a spree of looting private homes in small villages. But he made the mistake of falling asleep in a house which he thought was unoccupied. He was rudely awakened to find himself surrounded by Belgian police.

Helm talked fast, claiming he was a British national. The police listened politely until he finished. Then one of them handed him an MP handbill.

Helm knew at once that his goose was cooked and admitted what he had done.

A quick trial won him a life sentence. A lot of Snyder's friends in the MP Corps thought death would have been too good for Helm.

But you can stop any Army MP today, ask him who Helm is, and he'll tell you in no uncertain terms. The fast-talking cop-killer gave them a grim lesson to remember.

Today's Poem . . . .

Pattern For Life

Don't take time to worry
For time's a precious thing,
It goes in a hurry,
Like as if on wing;
Live each golden minute
While its here today
Put all you have in it
Before it flits away;
Even if there's sorrow
Find your faith in prayer
That the new tomorrow
Will be in His care:
Choose the brightest path,
Tread it all the way,
Learn the art to laugh,
Then let come what may;
Just learn to forget
This way you will find
There is nothing yet
Like the peace of mind;
Something you can't buy,
Something you must earn,
Always worth a try,
A little hard to learn;
Try a little test
Push your troubles out
Look only for the best
As you go about;
Think of your troubles less,
Count your blessings more,
Work hard for success
And then add up your score,
Life is sure to be Happier day by day,
Just try it once and see,
Its easier that way.

GUARDSMEN TAKE COMMAND—Armed National Guardsmen stand in front of the Russell County courthouse at Phenix City, Ala., as the vice-infested city was placed under "qualified martial law" by Gov. Gordon Parsons. The guardsmen, armed with machineguns, shotguns and carbines, moved into the sheriff's office and the police department and began disarming the citizenry in an attempt to wipe out the "lawlessness, intimidation, tumult and fear" that have gripped the city's 23,000 persons since the June 18 underworld assassination of crime-fighting Albert L. Graveyard Gossip of Goro; Widows Talk to Dead Husbands

GORO, Italy, July 24 (AP)—"Maria is pregnant again." "Giovanni still beats his wife." "I have finally bought the green dress. It is modest."

Mortal ears were not meant to hear this harmless gossip between the widows of Goro and their menfolk, separated only by the tomb.

The black-robed women of this tiny Po River delta town talk twice each week to their dead sons and brothers and husbands.

It is a local custom—the "graveyard gossip of Goro," which priests here say can do no harm.

Goro rests precariously on the shifting mudbanks of the Po delta, one tiny house propped against another for strength, pots out to catch precious fresh rainwater.

Its citizens, mostly fisher-folk, call it "one step beyond world's end."

An autobus comes twice each week from Ferrara, on Thursdays and Sundays, and signs along the two-mile causeway warn other motorists not to risk the trip those days because the road is not wide enough for them and the bus.

On those same two days each week, the widows of Goro walk to their nearby cemetery. Its marble tombs, built above ground because of the high water level, cost 100,000 ($165)—almost half a year's pay for the average family.

At the gates they take up tiny wooden stools and carry them, each to the tomb of her lost ones.

There they sit for hours and talk, their voices rising in lament, or murmuring busily about private affairs.

They tell the whole story of the past few days.

"Francesco has bought a television. An instrument of the Devil. Mario went to see it last night. He came home with his eyes ill..."

"Roberto has bought your old boat. And see well, I got him to pay. . ."

Sometimes, after talking with members of their families, they visit the tombs of friends for a brief chat.

Then they take back the stools, and walk on home across fields almost always soggy with the sea that laps so near.

They believe their dead are happy—happier than they who live in poverty, and patched huts, and ceaseless toil, and ankle-deep mud, and the unending prayer for fresh water.

So the gossip they tell their dead is always guarded carefully against causing sadness.

"Maria is pregnant again. . .but this time the doctor says surely the baby will live."

"Giovanni still beats his wife. . . but she has forgiven him again."

"And the television, Mario says after we have the glasses probably it will not hurt the eyes. . ."

'Slow Death' Claims Its Latest Victim

CHICAGO (AP) — The insidious "slow death" that claimed a number of women workers who painted watch dials with radium paint in the '20s has taken one of its latest victims.

Mrs. Ruth Williams, 48, of Ottawa, Ill., died in Billings Memorial hospital Thursday night from a bone affliction caused by radium poisoning.

The women shaped the radium paint brushes in their mouths. They became ill months or years later and there were several deaths. A court battle developed over compensation.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Williams is believed to be one of the last of the poisoning victims.

definite remedial action.

2. Development of a master plan incorporating anticipated future development of the community as well as present needs, and based on the principle of doing the greatest good for the greatest number.

3. Implementation and prosecution of the details of the master plan even though "pressure" or selfish opposition is met.

4. Provision of adequate facilities, personnel and equipment.

Need Realized

Evidence of the realization of the need, at least by some City Officials, has been given by the employment of the writer as a traffic consultant to conduct a cursory traffic survey and to assist, for the period of at least one year, in the development and implementation of a Master Traffic Plan and in improving localized traffic conditions. The assistance received from some City Officials, and conferences with other Administration Officials and business men, has indicated the civic spirit necessary for implementation and prosecution of a properly developed master plan.

The second factor - - - developing a master plan involves two steps for improving traffic conditions and both of them are necessary and must be considered —

1. The application of common sense and ingenuity in making every existing or new street and traffic or parking facility do a better and more efficient job. This includes the enactment of proper regulations, impartial and active enforcement, development and maintenance of adequate traffic and accident records, elimination of the causes of traffic accidents, congestion and delay by careful study and application of proper remedial measure, use of standard traffic control devices only where and when warranted, proper timing of fixed or pretimed traffic signals in accordance with traffic demand, designation of through or major streets as determined by surveys and studies, dissemination of factual information by all practical means for obtaining approval and support of the general public.

2. The construction of modern traffic facilities including adequate width streets or divided highways, extending existing streets to provide new connections with other old or new facilities, by-pass routes and off-street parking facilities for passenger cars, trucks and busses.

It is to the common interest of every Sedalia citizen and business organization to work unitedly toward improving street traffic conditions and to give all support necessary to those in the city government who are striving toward this end.

General Recommendations

A cursory survey and report can provide only the initial basis for a continuing program of traffic betterment which must include more detailed surveys and studies of specific conditions and locations, detailed development of plans for specific improvements, etc., however, the following recommendations resulting from the cursory traffic survey of your City in June 1954 if approved and followed will provide for immediate and continued improvement of traffic conditions.

For convenience, these recommendations are presented:

I. The master plan should, in being developed, be based on surveys and studies enumerated in the Engineering Section of the Long Range Plan, and should give consideration to the following:

a. A system of major or through streets or highways.

b. Adequate, but not excessive traffic regulations.

c. Use and maintenance of "standard" traffic control devices only where and when warranted.

d. Proper use of existing roadway facilities for expediting traffic flow.

e. Proper use of existing on-street and off-street parking facilities.

f. Proper control of driveways or street access locations and design.

g. Development of suitable and adequate off-street parking facilities.

h. Provision of sufficient trained personnel and the in-service training of personnel.

i. Adequate street lighting for traffic safety.

j. Resurfacing of existing streets.

k. Elimination of street offsets, i.e. where streets do not connect properly.

l. Extension and development of existing streets.

m. Coordination of Immediate Action measures with the master plan.

n. Cooperation with other governmental agencies.

o. Publicity to keep the public informed of activities and to secure their cooperation.

(Tomorrow: First group of specific recommendations.)

19th Semi-Pro Tournament Underway At Liberty Park

Saturday Rain Delays Second Day Action

Maytags, Clinton Claycomo and Nevada Win First Contests

The 19th annual Missouri Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament got underway Friday night with one of the best crowds an opening night has had for the tournament in Sedalia. Appropriate ceremonies were conducted in front of the baseball grandstand when the Sedalia Air Force Color Guard presented the flag and raised it on the flag pole in center field.

Mayor Julian H. Bagby took to the mound to hurl the first ball of the tournament which was caught by Capt. Henry E. Willoughby representing Col. Franklin K. Reyher, who was unable to be at the park at the time the ceremonies were conducted.

Mayor Bagby, who has had several practice sessions in opening baseball in Sedalia for the Little League, Softball League and others, hurled a perfect strike over the plate, for the first time.

In the opening game the Sedalia Maytags defeated the Marshall Merchants 9-2 and the second game saw the Clinton Merchants edge out the Sedalia Air Force Base 7-5. (Additional information on these games on the sports page)

Commissioner H. L. "Hank" Williams for Missouri for the National Baseball Congress, lived up to his promise of bringing to Sedalia a break in the heat wave. He anticipated rain on the opening night but the skies held together until those games were over. Early Saturday morning the rain came, bringing a long waited relief.

The rain put a "damper" on the Saturday schedule when wet grounds created a change in the schedule starting from 12-noon until about 4:30 p.m.

The Lexington Merchants in the first game played Saturday came through to edge out the Claycomo Merchants by a 6-5 score. It was a long game due to a heavy diamond, but it was well played in spite of the handicap.

Claycomo appeared to be the winning team in this game when they scored the first tally in the bottom half of the fourth, came back to break a tie after Lexington retaliated in the top of the fifth with one run, which was overcome in the bottom by Claycomo. Then the top of the sixth saw the score tied up by Lexington to be broken again in the bottom of the inning when Claycomo scored two tallies, then added another in the seventh. Lexington scored in the top of the eighth then came through in the top of the ninth to break up the tie and take a one run lead by scoring three runs. Claycomo was unable to score in either the eighth or ninth.

Williams, first baseman for Lexington broke up the Lexington pitching when he sent a driving liner toward pitcher White. The ball hit White on the left leg with a crack, rolled over toward third to give the Negro first baseman an infield hit. This resulted in White being removed from the game in the seventh inning and being replaced by B. Oatis. Oatis was relieved in the ninth by Hill.

Brockman was replaced on the mound by R. Lang for Lexington in the seventh.

Nevada 2, Local 93 K. C. 1

The second game of Saturday's schedule got underway about 7:30 p.m. and carried on for two and a half hours with the Nevada Red Sox defeating the team from Local 93 CIO-UAW Kansas City by a 2-1 score.

This game although close in the score was draggy due to the heavy diamond but it was well played. Hits were even 7-7 while only three errors were chalked up, one against Local 93 and two against Nevada.

Nevada broke into an early lead which they protected through the remaining nine innings. In the opening stanza they tallied two runs while Local 93 collected its lone tally in the top of the fifth.

Friday Games

In the opening game the Sedalia Maytags jumped to an early lead to defeat the Marshall Merchants, 9-2, behind the strikeout pitching of Joe Imhauser.

Imhauser allowed but five hits while he sent 17 Marshall batters to the bench via the strikeout route. Boedecker, on the mound for Marshall, allowed 11 hits for nine runs and struck out four. Imhauser walked one and Boedecker walked four.

Extra bases made were only doubles with the following batters hitting in that division: Boedecker for Marshall, Thompson, Evans, Fall, Walker and Smith for the Maytags.

Second Game

The second game was a heartbreaker for pitcher Hamm of the Sedalia Air Force Base, who had 18 strikeouts and then was credited with the loss to the Clinton Merchants. The SAFB had taken an early lead in the game only to fall back and never were able to catch up from then on. The score was 7-5.

The "Fly Boys" tallied two in the first, two in the fourth and one in the fifth, while the Merchants tallied three in the fourth, one in the seventh, two in the eighth and another in the ninth.

It is interesting to note also the SAFB had 22 strikeouts and still lost. Gumm had five for the Merchants. Another point of interest is the fact only three men handled the pot-outs for the SAFB. Catcher Roland was credited with 20, first baseman C. Kruger five, and third baseman Mitroff two

Little League Alters Play, Sets Playoffs

Schedule of games for the Little League majors has been changed, according to George Ray, who announced that the playoffs are to begin Aug. 9.

Games scheduled for the American league for July 29 have been cancelled and two National league games will be played on that date: Jaycees vs Kiwanis and Elks vs. Rotary.

In the playoffs, the first place teams of the two leagues will meet for the championship and second place while the second place teams of both leagues will meet for the city third and fourth places.

A best two out of three series will be played by both sets of teams with the first games on Aug. 9, second on Aug. 11 and third on Aug. 13. In case no third game is needed by one of the two sets of teams, a game will be played on Aug. 13 between the 12-year olds of the two leagues.

Missouri Semi-Pro Tournament Shorts

The first home run of the game was made by a former Sedalia favorite and former player with the Sedalia Chiefs, Jerry Lumpee, of Warsaw. Lumpee hit the third pitch over the center field fence just east of the flag pole, at about the 340 mark.

Lumpee, property of the Yankees, formerly was with the K. C. Blues before being moved to Binghampton, N. Y. just five weeks before being inducted into the service. He is now stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood and has been playing with the Leonard Wood Hilltoppers.

Lumpee is playing in the State tournament with the Springfield Generals.

His team was leading at the end of the third inning Saturday night 3-0.

In the first four games 18 two-base hits were made with B. Olds of the Claycomo Merchants getting two.

Two three-base hits were recorded in the same number of games, made by Mancuso of the Sedalia Air Force Base and Hill of Claycomo.

Of course the only home run hit up to the first four games and the first three innings of the fifth was made by Jerry Lumpee of the Springfield Generals.

White pitching for Claycomo narrowly escaped having his leg broken when struck by a hard driven ball hit by Williams, Lexington Merchants first baseman. White was pitching a good game until he had to be removed because of the pain in his leg. Williams was credited by his team mates of turning the tide for their team.

Fans of Central Missouri will have an opportunity to see some of the best matched teams ever to play in a state tournament in Sedalia. This week will be filled with good baseball and from early appearances "no slouch" clubs.

Sedalia CC Golf Into Semi-Finals

The quarterfinals matches of the Sedalia Country Club golf championship were all played Friday and Saturday as Herb Studer, the 1953 defending champion, advanced with three other strong contenders into the semifinals.

Studer made short work in eliminating Col. Householder, SAFB, 6 up-4 to play, in the 18-hole affair, as Damon Hieronymus soundly defeated Lt. Preston Moore, SAFB, by a 5-4 margin, as Hieronymus played steady golf, going only one over par for the 13-holes. In a match between Charles Patterson and Judd Grayston, Patterson was the victor by a 4-3 edge. Dick Gorrell rounded out the quarterfinal winners as he nosed Danny Van Dyne 3-2.

In the 36-hole semifinals matches, which are to be played sometime between Aug. 1 and Aug. 8, Studer and Hieronymmus will meet, and Grayston will match odds against Gorrell, as both matches are expected to go right down to the wire.

Adco Is Champ Of Minor Loop In Little League

Adco has been crowned as the champion of the minor league of the Little Leagues, having run through the season undefeated. All-Stars have been selected and announced.

Friday night the last two games were played, Kiwanis beating Democrat-Capital 11 to 9 and Jaycees upsetting Rotary 4 to 2. Previously the Jaycees had won only one game and Rotary had lost only one. Jaycees' Bristol hit his second homer of the week over the fence to gain the win for Cole, who turned in a good performance on the mound.

Saturday's games were rained out and have been cancelled since they would not alter the standings.

The champion Adcos will play the minor league all-stars next week.

Among the minor league all-stars are the following with others yet to be selected: Rotary — Peck, Phillips, Cross and Truman; Jaycees, — Bristol, Hammond, Ray and Cole; Democrat — Howard, Ross and McFarland; Lions — Hanson, Aldrich, Zimmerschied and Robinson; Kiwanis Randall, Ferguson.

Kiely Hurls BoSox To 5-2 Win Over ChiSox

BOSTON, July 24 (AP)—Lefthander Leo Kiely retired the last 19 batters to face him in defeating Chicago 5-2 today while Boston teammates Jackie Jensen, Ted Williams and Del Wilber cracked home runs.

Sports Scraps

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

WHAT time is it mister? came a querry from a youngster at the 19th annual Missouri Semi-Pro baseball tournament Friday night. It is customary for such questions during the state tournament from these future ball players who are "limited" to the time they can stay at the games by their parents. Most time —it runs overtime.

Those in the press box immediately looked at their watches and in chorus repeated together "five minutes to twelve". This shook the lad, it was evident, as he muttered well I'm late now anyway, and went back and sat down to stay the remaining 30 minutes it took to end the game.

But it was far better, if he was going to stay out late, to be at the baseball game than running about town on the streets. He was enjoying himself, besides seeing some mighty good baseball which was deeply interesting to him.

SQUADRON Athletic Supervisors at the Sedalia Air Force Base learned the past week a real program is in store for the base. Capt. Henry E. Willoughby, special service officer, told of plans in the making for the base recreation which includes the expenditure of approximately $100,000.

The briefing of the supervisors was conducted the past week by Capt. Willoughby who told the men of the facilities which are now available for use at the athletic office. He is encouraging as many men possible to take advantage of the facilities on the base and that supervised recreation would be athletic program and also told of recreation areas being planned or being started. These plans include lighted baseball and softball diamonds at a cost of $30,000; tennis courts, lighted, at a cost of about $5,000; lighted outdoor basketball court, $5,000; picnic area, $1,000; air condition service club and library, $29,000; and four bowling lanes at a cost of about $20,000.

The Special Services has athletic equipment for almost any sport and personnel on the base is urged to utilize it.

—O—

BACK to the Semi-Pro baseball tournament. Ironic as it might seem, State Commissioner H. L. "Hank" Williams lived up to one big promise if Sedalia turned out enmasse to the first ball game—RAIN.

Williams really anticipated a good rainfall on the opening night, but the night rolled by until early morning Saturday when the skies opened up and brought a welcome relief to this area. Not only that but the rain came and put a stir in the Saturday schedule which was to have gotten underway at noon. Instead it caused a four and a half hour delay with the first Saturday tilt being started at 4:30 p.m.

The heavy diamond didn't keep it from being a good game because it was well played, but was very slow. The game was on by Lexington 6-5. The night game as held up for a short time pending work on the diamond and it was late. So games Saturday night brought back fond memories of 1940 when "all night" baseball was played.

Only one game up to the time the presses started rolling turned out to be one sided at that was between the Sedalia Maytags and Marshall Merchants 9-2, won by the "Tags". Clinton and the Sedalia Air Force Base was a close one taken by Clinton 7-5; and the Lexington Merchants edged out Claycomo Merchants 6-5.

I would suggest to you local baseball fans to give the 19th Annual Tournament your support and I am sure that if you attend all the sessions you will be rewarded by several good games.

Marilyn Herpel Wins Mo. Women's Amateur Golf

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP)—Marilyn Herpel of St. Louis routed 16-year-old Kate Richards of Poplar Bluff, 9 to 8, today to win her third Missouri Women's amateur golf tournament title.

Miss Herpel, taking her second championship in succession, shot a blazing three-under-par 35 on the back nine of the morning round to finish the first 18 holes eight up.

But the Poplar Bluff lass didn't give up.

Both shot 39s on the first nine of the afternoon round, leaving the 24-year-old Miss Herpel still eight up.

She closed out the match, putting an approach shot just two feet from the pin and sinking it for a birdie four on the 28th hole of the scheduled 36-hole match.

The 9 and 8 margin is not a record. That is held by Sara Louise Guth who defeated Georgia Dexheimer, 12 and 10, in the 1938 final.

Women's par at the Norwood Country Club for the tourney was 37-38—75.

Miss Richards, whose putting had been excellent during the earlier stages of the tournament, had a couple of three-putt greens on the back nine of the morning round to put her behind.

Miss Richards, three down after 12 holes, tied on the 13th but then her game went completely astray as she took five straight bogeys while Miss Herpel carded three pars and two birdies to stretch her commanding lead to eight up.

Miss Herpel was just one over par for the 28 holes played. She carded a 40-35—75 in the morning and a 39 on the first round ih tne afternoon while Miss Richards had a 41-45—86 and a 39.

Fancy Field Into 4th Round Of PGA Golf

By WILL GRIMSLEY

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 24 (AP)—Slugging Sam Snead and his South American counterpart, Roberto de Cicenzo, smashed through their third round matches like unharnessed bulls today to lead a cordon of "big name" players into the quarter-finals of the PGA golf championship.

Oldtimers called it the fanciest field of eight to survive this exhausting head-to-head marathon since the last war.

Snead, the pain gone from his celebrated neck and wisecracks back on his lips, smothered E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the onetime Arkansas Traveler now from St. Louis, 7 and 6.

De Vicenzo, the handsome, nut-brown Latin from Buenos Aires, uncorked even more devastating golf to crush Elroy Marti, the little known public links pro from Houston, 8 and 6.

Other survivors of the long, 36-hole grind over Keller's level acres were defending champion Walter Burkemo; Dr. Cary Middlecoff, 1949 National Open champion; Chick Harbert, the long-hitting two-time runnerup from Northville, Mich.; Tommy Bolt the dapper club tosser from Houston; young Shelley Mayfield of Chicopee, Mass., and jockey-sized Jerry Barber of LaCanada, Calif.

All of these are—or have been—familiar figures on the tough pro circuit.

In tomorrow's quarter - finals, Snead faces Bolt and Barber opposes Harbert in the top half of the bracket. The lower half sends Burkemo against de Cicenzo and Middlecoff against Mayfield.

The semi-finals are scheduled Monday with the 36-hole championship round Tuesday.

In the closest match fo the day, 130-pound Barber rallied from the brink of defeat to beat Charley Bassler of Catonsville, Md., one up on the 38th hole. He was two down with three to play before his fine comeback.

No other match carried as far as the 36th although two came to conclusion on the 35th. Harbert won over Ed (Porky) Oliver, the low medalist, 3 and 1. Bolt ousted Jim Browning of Weston, Mass., second round conqueror of U. S. Open Champion Ed Furgol, 2 and 1.

Burkemo won over his former teacher, 43-year-old Johnny Revolta, 4 and 3. Middlecoff grew stronger in the afternoon after a bitter pre-lunch duel to expel Ted Kroll of New Hartford, Conn., 5 and 4. Mayfield eliminated Horton Smith, 46-year-old Professional Golfers Association president whose career spans the Bobby Jones era, 3 and 2.

Braves Drop 1st Place Giants By 5-4 Scoring

MILWAUKEE, July 24 (AP) — Billy Bruton lined a single to right with two on and two out in the eighth inning off reliefer Marv Grissom today to give the Milwaukee Braves a 5-4 victory over New York, their second straight one-run verdict from the National League leaders.

Willie Mays, back from his Aunt Sara's funeral, cracked his 34th homer with Monte Irvin on in the top of the eighth to tie the score after Eddie Mathews had belted his 25th with one on in the third. Mays' poke assured him of a new league record for homers through July, the old mark was 33 set by Hack Wilson of Chicago in 1930.

Sedalians Organize Midwest Talent Bureau to Entertain

"There is no business like show business," and that Larry Riley firmly believes. Larry comes from New York and did extensive work in directing show groups in musical comedies, revues, minstrels, etc., there before coming to Sedalia.

He is employed at the Pittsburgh Corning Class Company and is happily married to a Sedalia girl, but ever since he has been here he has had that urge for show business, something that seemed to be needed in this town ——live entertainment.

He went to work with the Community Playhouse group and has done almost every type of job in that—but there was still a lack of real entertainment that he would like to get into, the knid of things he did back in New York.

Several months ago Larry was somewhere where Peg'ee Hewitt Homan happened to be and, since Peg'ee's middle name is entertainment, they had a common ground. Larry not only knew what he could do but he knew what Peg'ee could do, too. He had seen what she had done with local talent for the Lions Club, when the members put on one of the most successful shows that Sedalia has seen for years. The audience begged for another performance but the Lions felt they had put all they had in the first show and didn't want to tackle another.

The two of them discussed the talent in this area and noted that when a good entertainer showed up he was either smothered by invitations, and worked under all and any conditions until he was soon burned out, or he wilted unnoticed because he lacked proper presentation. Too, there was no agency in Central Missouri to which a person or organization could go with their entertainment problems. There was no one company that knew show business from experience that could furnish whatever was needed, whether it was some short entertainment for a banquet, a party or for a full length show.

Then and there Larry, with his skill in directing and technical know-how, and Peg'ee, with her skill of dancing, felt they were a combination that could do a good job in the community. There came into being the Midwest Talent Bureau. This was something that would certainly fill a need in the area with the purpose primarily good entertainment.

Larry is director with Peg'ee assistant director. Through their bureau they plan to train and develop anyone who has some talent who is interested enough in show business to apply themselves. Their job will be to guide and instruct, but the individual has to do the work.

Then as soon as they think they are ready to appear publicly, Peg'ee and Larry plan to book the entertainers into shows and various engagements. They are using some now and plan to book more acts that are already developed and, in some cases, very well known in the entertainment field.

The Midwest Talent Bureau will plan, engage or produce entertainment for any purpose. They have scripts equipment, music, dialogues and a wealth of cumulative experience behind them and feel that they can do a good job in the entertainment field. They will function as a booking agency as well as a producing and developing agency and have already filled numerous requests for bands and single acts. Peg'ee and Larry have found that their biggest problem around this locale is providing good dance music, there is a shortage of small units for dances.

Sometime early in the fall they plan a talent search. It will be in the form of advertised auditions and probably some competitive contests to unveil any new talent in the vicinity. In the meantime, anyone wanting to audition may call 1500 and if neither Peg'ee nor Larry is there, they may leave a message as to what they want to do, name, address and telephone number.

They plan to develop a couple of shows tailored for specific types of showings, otherwise they will present any show wanted on the basis of length of performance, occasion and budget. An organization or person can tell what it would like to have, how long the show should run and what it wants to spend, and the entertainment will be made to fit the need.

Too, they will put on shows where they furnish everything but the talent, and will train the members to present the show. This would be an excellent social and financial activity for any organization, they believe. Peg'ee and Larry would travel to their meeting halls or train them at home.

The first production will be the variety show which will be staged in front of the baseball grandstand at Liberty Park on Aug. 1 for the benefit of the Cerebral Palsy Association.

Peg'ee, who is Mrs. Homer Homan of Smithton, is particularly interested in this because it deals with children who need help. Peg'ee has two daughters, well they are really not her own, they are her husband's daughters, but she loves them just as much as if they were really her own. They are Nan and Jan Homan and she is so thankful that they are healthy youngsters who cannot only walk, but also can dance.

She is anxious that this show will be a success that the cerebral palsied youngsters of Pettis County may get the help they need. Along with helping the children, Peg'ee knows that the people of Sedalia are going to see a really good show—a show under the stars.

Tribe Triumphs Over Yanks 5-4 In 10 Innings

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—Larry Doby's two-run homer in the 10th inning today moosted Cleveland's American League lead to 2½ games with 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees in a wild ball game that saw Casey Stengel juggling his lineup madly in a desperate attempt to square the important series.

The Yanks took it right down to the final out, driving reliefer Bob Lemon to cover and also disposing of Hal Newhouser in the last of the 10th. Ray Narleski finally ended it by striking out pinch hitter Gil McDougald with one run in and men on first and third.

Mickey Mantle's double and Yogi Berra's single provided the late Yank run, but it wasn't enough to save reliefer Johnny Sain, who hadn't lost in 15 previous appearances since June 2.

The clashing of master minds became so violent in the late stages that center fielder Mantle wound up playing shortstop and then shifting to second base when a runner got on base and a right-handed hitter was up. As soon as a lefty came to bat, Manager Stengel switched Mantle back to short and Willie Miranda to second.

It didn't make any difference wwho played short or second when Doby hammered a 3-2 pitch into the lower right field seats off Sain in the 10th. It was 20 for Doby, tying him with Mantle for the home run lead.

Bob Lemon, who replaced starter Don Mossi in the seventh after the Yanks tied the score, led off the 10th with a drag bunt single. Al Smith's bunt moved Lemon to second before Bobby Avila popped out. Then Doby put over the crusher, giving Lemon his 11th victory.

Drought Is Burning Up US From Atlantic To Rockies

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

The unrelenting sun is bruning the brand of drought deeper into the United States.

There is drought of some kind, mild to terrible, from the Georgia coast to the Wyoming mountains and from Canada to Mexico.

In some states where last spring there was hope of a fruitful summer, farmers now say it will be the worst year since the mid 30s.

Texas, New Mexico and Colorado —states that received federal disaster relief last summer—have been declared in line for it again. Wyoming is a new member of this unhappy company. Oklahoma, a charter member of the 1953 drought disaster club, is seeking reinstatement. Missouri and Georgia have applied for admission. Kansas is on the ragged edge of disaster.

And long days of dry heat have burned into the grain fields of the Dakotas, the farms of Indiana and Iowa, the tobacco plantations of the Carolinas.

Only six weeks ago there was a lot of talk that the drought might be on the way out. Heavy spring rains raised good stands of grass and crops in West Texas areas that had been dry four years. In Oklahoma and Missouri, experts declared the drought broken. There were cheerful reports from Nebraska and Kansas.

But hardly any rain has fallen since then—and most of it has been in the wrong places.

President Eisenhower has ordered an emergency feed program much like the one that was set up last summer so that ranchers could buy hard-to-get livestock feed at cut-rate prices. So far, 78 counties—23 in Texas, 23 in Colorado, 24 in New Mexico and 8 in Wyoming—have been listed for this federal disaster help.

This summer's Texas disaster area up to now is concentrated in the south central part of the state. It's much smaller than last summer, when it took in more than 100 counties and roughly the western half of Texas. But it may be enlarged. Gov. Allan Shivers had advised all dry parts of East Texas —a section that came through last summer in pretty good shape—to apply for needed help. And State Agriculture Commissioner John White said West Texas, which was helped most by the spring rains, is slipping back fast. He said some parts of West Texas are better off than a year ago only because anything is better than zero.

Ironically, up to 22 inches of rain soaked southwest Texas the last weekend in June. But it surged away in clash floods down dry washes and sent the Rio Grande on its worst rampage in history.

Pounding rains like those usually aren't much help, anyway. New Mexico got some—with the usual flash floods—toward the end of last week. Experts agreed the spotted cloudbursts had little effect on the drought. What is needed is slow, soaking, general rain.

Livestock men in New Mexico said the situation is more critical than ever before, with 300,000 acres of range blowing or about to blow in the eastern part of the state. Summer ranges are bare; there is no chance of winter grass unless general rains fall in the next two months—and, unless that happens, "most of us are out of business," said Sherwood Culberson, president of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Assn.

David Rice, executive secretary of the Colorado Cattlemen's Assn., called it the "worst drought since the 30s." Farm officials said crops haven't been so withered since 1934.

About 90 per cent of Wyoming's stock watering holes are dry. Grass is satisfactory only in the extreme west. "It's so dry even sagebrush isn't growing," a U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesman said.

"It's much the same in Oklahoma. "Pastures are as bare as in the dead of winter," a count agent said. A warning from Oklahoma state and federal farm officials that it will be the worst year since 1936 prompted Gov. Johnston Murray to appeal last week for another summer's disaster relief from the federal government.

Gov. Phil Donnelly, acting on his own, declared Missouri a drought disaster area and Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) appealed for federal help. Since then, President Eisenhower has directed Civil Defense Administer Val Peterson to study whether Missouri should be classified as a disaster area for federal purposes.

Warren W. Fuqua of the Missouri Farm Bureau said "I don't think there's an acre of green pasture left in the state." Crops are a complete loss in many sections, with corn estimated at 45 per cent of normal, pastures at 40 per cent of normal and both getting worse daily. Swarms of grasshoppers are causing as much damage as the drought in some sections. County agents said 37 per cent of Missouri's farmers will have to sell their cattle for lack of feed.

In Georgia, the only Southern state approaching the condition of those in the Southwest and Middle West, Gov. Herman Talmadge said 50 per cent of the dairy feed supply in some areas has been burned out. That's why he appealed for federal aid.

Gov. Edward F. Arn of Kansas is thinking about declaring his state a disaster area. Kansas had 35 days in a row of temperatures 100 degrees or higher—some as high as 120 degrees. The result was inevitable—withering crops and large market runs of cattle. The State Board of Health said at least 83 cities and towns have imposed some sort of restriction on the use of water.

In Nebraska, Iowa and Indiana, temperatures have been running 100 degrees or better. James E. Newman, Purdue University agronomist, said southern Indiana probably will have its worst drought since 1936. Farmers have started selling hay they intended to use next winter, and there has been some distress selling of livestock.

Many Iowa farmers are hauling water for their animals. Nebraska corn is in jeopardy, but rain and cooler weather could save it.

Hot weather matured small grains too fast in North and South Dakota and Minnesota. A half inch to an inch of rain last week helped the southern half of South Dakota. All three states need more rain, but the situation in Minnesota is not yet serious.

Rain is needed, too, in Wisconsin, although the term drought still has not been applied to that state.

In the Carolinas, dry weather hit tobacco, corn, pastures, legumes and truck crops. Some farmers in both North and South Carolina are being forced to use winter cattle feed now.

Airplane Hits Mountain Peak, Six Are Killed

PIKEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A twin-engine plane being demonstrated to a prospective buyer on a Michigan-to-Florida trip crunched into a mountain top southeast of here yesterday, killing at least six persons.

Tennessee Highway Patrolman Lloyd Baker said at Chattanooga early today that a seventh billfold had been found, indicating another possible victim.

The plane was en route from Pontiac, Mich., to Tampa, when it came in low over the mountain, dropped an engine and then crashed, throwing wreckage and mangled bodies over an area almost a mile across.

The pilot, Gordon Franklin Wyrick of Pontiac, had picked up the interested buyer, Howard E. Anthony, and the other passengers at Benton Harbor, Mich.

Beside Anthony, who was the president of the Heath Co., manufacturer of electronic supplies and a bank director, and Wyrick, the other victims included:

Morris William Durham, Lawrence, Mich., Anthony's private pilot.

Gordon Paxton, Benton Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurel Brown, Lawrence.

A witness, Mrs. Arthur Simmons, who lives near the crash scene, said she watched the plane pass about 200 feet over her house with a "roar like a bunch of jets flying over." She said she saw a motor fall from the plane and land near her house.

Appeals for Drought Aid

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Rep. Hillelson (R-Mo) appealed to President Eisenhower today for immediate action to combat drought conditions in Missouri.

"This is an emergency and must be handled as such," he wrote the President.

Although three years of drought conditions have damaged Missouri agriculture, Hillelson said, he feels "much can be saved by prompt and immediate action on the part of the federal government. . ."

He urged that Secretary of Agriculture Benson send representatives into the state "in order that these conditions may be confirmed and assistance rendered."

George Hackley Honored For 50 Years as Mason

George W. Hackley Sr., who maintains a stable of harness horses at the Missouri State Fair Grounds in Sedalia, was recently honored for his 50 years as a membe of the Waverly Masonic Lodge.

It was on June 25, 1904, that Hackley took his first degree at Waverly. At the recent ceremony, he remarked that if all men lived up to Masonry, they would make worthwhile citizens.

Although he will observe his 83d birthday next January, Hackley, with his son, G. W. Hackley Jr., continues his activities of breaking and training his own horses at the fair grounds.

A daughter, Mrs. Nadine Glasscock, is postmaster at Waverly and is president of the Missouri chapter of the National Association of Postmasters of the United States. Her husband, Harry, has long been active at the State Fair as a starter and judge for horse races.

History of Congregation Is Recalled–

114 Years Old, New Bethel Church Plans Homecoming

Some few minutes after leaving Sedalia, driving to the south, hurrying travelers see a small country church standing on the summit of a hill. The sight of its simple spire rising as a beacon unto God must give inspiration to many.

In another minute they see its name above the door, "New Bethel Methodist Church."

Located approximtely six miles from Sedalia, it is built on a two-acre tract of land, the deed to which shows it was purchased for the sum of $30 from Henry A. Crawford and his wife, Nannie D. Crawford, on Oct. 12, 1877. A cemetery, where many of its original members and their descendants are buried, lies to the south of the church building.

The founding of this church took place over 113 years ago, in 1840, at Brown Springs, a few miles from its present site.

In that year, a camp meeting was held at the springs, and at the close of the meeting, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall, Mrs. D. Anderson, and others, a Methodist class was organized. For some years the members gathered at each other's homes to worship, and Sunday school was held at the home of Dr. Alec Brown, who lived at Brown Springs. Others of the original membership were O. P. Hatton and W. R. Anderson.

On Dec. 22, 1856, the group bought a piece of ground at Brown Springs on which to erect a church building. This tract was bought for $10 from Clifton and America Wood. A crude building was built on the newly acquired site. Inside were slab benches and a fireplace. This church was known as Anderson's Church. The trustees at that time were Absolom Elliott, William Anderson, Benjamin Melvin, Perry Hatton, Hedgeman Warren, James Warren and Robert O'Blakey. Here, until after the Civil War, services were held irregularly. In 1867 the building was moved to a tract of ground given by one of the members, W. R. Anderson, for a church and school. (Anderson School stands on the site.)

Ten years later, in December, 1877, after the purchase of the aforementioned two acres, a quarterly conference was held in the home of W. H. Anderson. At that meeting $1,000 was pledged for the building of a new church. A building committee was organized, the members of which were W. H. Anderson, Absolom Elliott, W. P. Anderson, J. C. Hatton, and Isaac Elliott.

On New Year's Day, 1878, Dr. C. C. Woods, one of the early ministers, dedicated the church, and the name was changed to New Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The frame building built at that time is the present sanctuary. In 1892 the spire was erected at a cost of $383 and some remodeling was done.

From its founding to 1890, the church's ministers were:

W. R. Anderson	W. M. Prottsman
W. C. Westlake	M. M. Pugh
Thomas Westlake	W. S. Woodard
W. N. Allen	E. K. Porter
A. C. Briggs	C. H. Briggs
William N. Anthony	L. P. Norfleet
W. C. Gill	W. B. Palmer
J. F. Robb	C. C. Woods
W. B. H. Woodard	Preston Phillips
J. M. Proctor	Joseph Godby

Since 1890, the ministers have been:

J. F. Hogan	Samuel Brooks
A. L. Houston	J. A. Jared
G. L. Houston	C. M. Licklider
G. L. Taylor	Ed. W. Tetley
B. M. Steel	L. M. Pollock
C. A. Emmons	S. P. Cayton
W. P. Barrett	C. E. Sullens
J. W. Patison	D. H. Holland
B. M. Crutsinger	Wesley Hampton
L. M. Phillips	P. E. Pierce
C. Bruner	C. J. Spreckelmeyer
Linnie Nightwine	Carl Opp
J. R. Scott	William Robinson
John Lewis	William Hall
N. M. Dowdy

On Sunday, June 30, 1940, New Bethel celebrated its centennial. A large crowd attended the morning service and basket dinner. In the afternoon there was a program in which many of the former ministers took part.

For several years the members discussed rebuilding or remodeling the church. A descendant of some of the founders, Miss Wynona Elliott, gave 40 acres of land to be sold, the proceeds to be used for the work. In 1953, upon the discovery that the building was basically sound, work was begun.

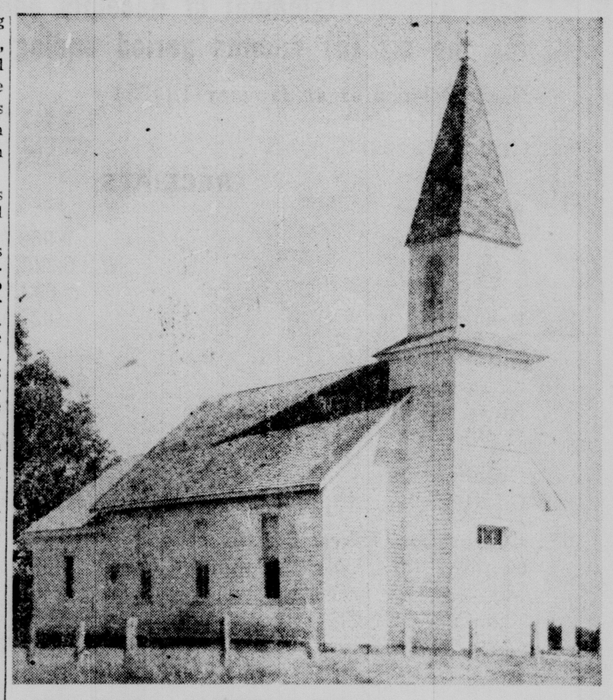

The inside dimensions of the main room measure 22¾ feet by 34¾ feet, the ceiling is dome-shaped, rising from 11 feet at each side to 16 feet high in the center. There is a tiny, 5 feet by 7 feet, vestibule. A sturdy foundation was built under the church; the original floor was in good condition except for layers of paint, and the members sanded and filled the boards before refinishing them beautifully. The walls were painted soft green, the woodwork white. Modern gas wall furnaces replace old, unreliable wood and coal stoves; the naked, hanging bulbs are now obscured by attractive globes. There is a dark red curtain hung on a low railing around the altar. Beautiful new pews replace the ancient uncomfortable benches.

A new Sunday school room, measuring 15½ feet by 22¾ feet inside, was added to the east end of the church. This room was decorated in the same colors as the main room by the men and women who spent many hours at the work. This is now used by the children and young people each Sunday morning.

Work is still being done, including repairs to the 40-foot steeple.

Church services are held on the first Sunday night of each month and on the third Sunday morning of each month. Sunday school meets every Sunday at 10 a.m. There is an active Woman's Society of Christian Service, and the young people have a Methodist Youth Fellowship organization.

Within a few months New Bethel Church will be 114 years old, but to all appearances it will be standing on its hill many, many years from now, still winning souls for God.

Lieutenant Is Cleared Of Dereliction Charge

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP)—A combat-tested infantry officer today stood vindicated of charges he permitted trainees of his command to be held at ramrod-straight attention for nearly an hour in 92-degree heat.

A special court-martial board of eight fellow officers cleared Lt. Robert S. Morgan of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., of the allegation yesterday after he denied having had anything to do with the June 21 incident.

Still to be tried by court-martial is Morgan's administrative aide, Sgt. Richard J. Witbeck of Wellington, Ohio, who one recruit described as "sadistic" and the man he thought gave the order for the formation.

Morgan and Witbeck were formally charged with "dereliction of duty" and alleged maltreatment of personnel, after 225 trainees were kept at attention in the wilting heat of June 21 for an unexplained breach of discipline.

Fifth Street Methodists Building New Wesley Methodist Church; Calvary Episcopal Church Sanctuary Being Remodeled and Enlarged, With Organ Added; East Baptists' Enlarge Auditorium by Providing Balcony, New Front; Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church Adds Service Building (Photos by Walch)

SECTION TWO

NEW BUILDING OF WESLEY METHODISTS is going up at Broadway and Carr and when it is completed the congregation of the present Fifth Street Methodist Church will move to the new sanctuary and educational unit. Work has been progressing rapidly the past few weeks and the excavation has been completed and the foundations poured.

CALVARY EPISCOPAL CHURCH REMODELING was necessitated by a weakened roof and dour steel supporting columns are being placed inside the sanctuary. A new pipe organ will be installed and the arrangement of the interior arches will be altered. The seating space will be enlarged and the pews will be rearranged to conform with the new interior design.

ENLARGEMENT OF THE EAST BAPTISTS' auditorium, at Fifth and Summit, will increase the size of the sanctuary and will provide a balcony. A new entrance is being provided at the ground level and there will be steps from the vestibule to both the auditorium and the basement. The addition is expected to alleviate the over-crowding of the auditorium at worship services.

EVANGELICAL AND REFORMED CHURCH BUILDS an educational building behind its present house of worship, at Fourth and Vermont. It will be known as the Immanuel Service Building and will have two floors and a basement. Excavation is also being made under the present Sunday scool building to provide a kitchen for the church.

'Hopper,' Heat Damage Heavy Near Nelson

By Mrs. Orpha Lee McCoy

NELSON — The heat is doing damage in Nelson, as well as all over the state. The poultry and live stock loss is mounting and the water situation is becoming serious in many homes. Insects, especially grasshoppers, are taking their toll, also, eating everything they can find and ruining what is left of the already drouth and heat ridden crops.

Mrs. Grover Barnes, Wadsworth Kan., visited Paul Barnes this past week. Mrs. Barnes returned Wednesday evening from Kansas City, where she visited her son, Paul Barnes Jr., and family.

Judges for the primary election Tuesday, Aug. 3, are: Democrats, W. F. Darby and Mrs. Will McGraw. Republicans, Rev. I. W. Griffin and Lee Engle.

Carole McReake, Kansas City, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Jeffress this week.

Jerry Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gorton Johnson, had five stitches taken in his scalp Wednesday evening after he fell from the rear of a truck, operated by his father. Jerry lost his balance and fell when he reached for his cap, which had blown off as they were going down Main Street. He returned home after receiving treatment in Marshall.

L. M. Nelson Sr., celebrated his 94th birthday quietly on Wednesday, July 14, with his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Hogge as a dinner guest, due to the fact that he had received word of the death of his sister, Mrs. Allie Morris of Kansas City, who was near 97 years old.

The Nelson 4-H Club will hold its next meeting Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horton Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Vesser Jr., and son returned to San Antonio Saturday night, after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Vesser Sr. and family. Mr. Vesser is with the Air Force and stationed at the Lackland AFB, Texas.

Miss Edna Ireland, who was born in Blackwater, was buried in the Nelson cemetery Saturday morning.

Perennial Fiction Favorites Are Novels About the South

Perennial favorites in fiction are novels about the South. Nineteenth century best sellers included Thomas Nelson Page's "In Old Virginia" and "Red Rock, a Chronicle of Reconstruction". Most best sellers of that day have disappeared from library shelves and from popularity long ago but these two still are read for their contemporary picture of the times. In 1926 Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" appeared and has retained its popularity ever since. The movie and musical comedy version have only served to enhance the demand for it. The romantic "Cotton Blossom Floating Palace Theatre" and the tragic love story of Magnolla Ravenal appeal to a wide audience.

James Street has followed the fortunes of the Dabney family of Natchez from the War of 1812 through the Cuban revolt of 1895 in a series of novels starting with "Oh, Promised Land", "Tap Roots", "By Valour and Arms", "Tomorrow We Reap" and "Mingo Dabney". Although the last of the series does not have the literary quality of the first three titles, they present a good picture of the South during that period. These have been favorites with men and women who like historical novels.

"Proud New Flags" by Van Wyck Mason, a story of the naval warfare between the North and the South, and Paul Wellman's "Angel With Spurs" are also for masculine consumption. The latter is the tale of the southern cavalrymen who went with Jo Shelby to Mexico to join Macimilian.

Leland Crabb of Nashville, Tennessee, has written a number of stories with Tennessee backgrounds. These are "Breakfast at the Hermitage", "Dinner at Belmont", "Home to the Hermitage", "Mockinbird Sang at Chickamauga", "Reunion at Chattanooga", and "Supper at Maxwell House".

Southern novels for the ladies, with a predomination love story, include such titles as Frances Parkinson Keyes "River Road," "Crescent Carnival" and "Dinner at Antoine's" and Edna Lee's "The Southerners". Irving Stone's "The President's Lady", the story of Mrs. Andrew Jackson, was at the top of the best seller list for some time. Two novels by Harnett Kane have also reached that list. They are "Bride of Fortune", the story of Mrs. Jefferson Davis and "Lady of Fortune", the life of Mrs. Robert E. Lee. Both are short, entertaining and as accurate as most fictionalized biographies.

Jack Lichtig complained James ran a red light and did $550 damages to Lichtig's car. Shull asked what Lichtig's car cost when he bought it and got $340 for the answer, but Lichtig quickly added: "A garage says it'll take $550 to fit it up. That's all I know."

Shull fined Andrews $20 for reckless driving; ordered damages fixed in civil court proceedings.

Italian Government Helps Ratification

ROME (AP)—The European army treaty took another step toward ratification in Italy today.

The treaty is expected to have a majority when it gets before the full Chamber and the Senate for a final vote. Only Communists and their Socialist allies have opposed it in the committee votes, with Monarchists and neo-Fascists abstaining.

Candidates Seek Party Nominations In Primary Elections Aug. 3

Haskell Holman (D) For State Auditor

Haskell Holman, Moberly, a direct descendant of the first settler of Randolph County, is a Democratic candidate to succeed himself as state auditor of Missouri.

He was educated in the Huntsville Public Schools and was graduated from the University of Missouri.

He began his political career in the office of the state auditor in 1933 as highway accounts clerk, and filled several positions before leaving the office in February, 1941, when he volunteered for service in the United States Army. He received an honorable medical discharge in the fall of that year, and returned to the office of state auditor where he was appointed supervisor of the state income tax division.

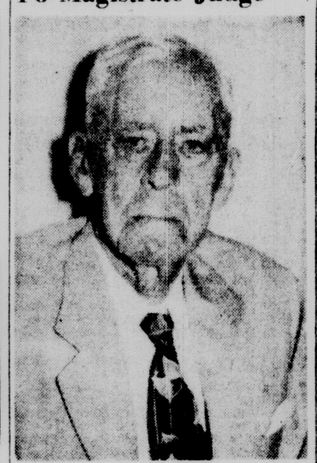

Upon the creation of the Department of Revenue by the new Constitution in 1946, he was given supervision over the income, inheritance, franchise, and newly imposed intangible tax units.

From January, 1949, to January, 1953, he served as chief clerk in the office of state treasurer.

He is an active member of the Christian Church, the American and Scottish Rite Masonic bodies, Shrine, Elks, Lions and Eagles Clubs.

He believes his experience, especially that with the parole board, will be particularly valuable to him in the handling of the duties of the magistrate court.

Judge A. M. Harlan is seeking reelection as probate judge of Pettis County on the Democratic ticket, having served in that capacity since 1949.

It was after the death of the late Judge J. E. Smith that Judge Harlan was appointed, by Gov. Forrest Smith, to fill out the unexpired term. In 1950 he sought reelection without opposition and he is now unopposed for his party's nomination.

Judge Harlan was admitted to the bar and opened his office for the practice of law on April 22, 1922. He continued in active practice until his appointment to the probate office.

With his wife, he resides at 902 West Broadway.

Hope For Lepers

BRAZZAVILLE, French Equatorial Arfica (AP)—There is hope for the 56,000 lepers in French Equatorial Afrıct that progression of their disease will be stopped and a near certainty that the following generation will hear of leprosy as a rare disease like the plague in Europe or America.

The French equatorial African health service, made the prediction in a report on a new campaign against leprosy. The campaign has been made possible by use of sulbone drugs which have revolutionized the traditional methods of caring for lepers.

John C. Ryan (R) For Collector

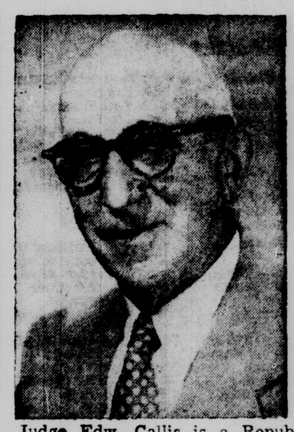

John C. Ryan is the Republican candidate for collector of Pettis County after 30 years of dealing with the public in business and as a county official.

At 19, Mr. Ryan joined his father, the late H. M. Ryan, in the operation of the Ryan Motor Co. at Warsaw. In 1925 he purchased the firm from his father and operated it until 1933 when he sold it to purchase the Huerman Ford Motor Co. in Sedalia. He operated that firm under his own name until he sold to Phil Russell in 1936.

In 1936 he became associated with the E. W. Thompson Motor Co. as salesmanager and in 1944 was elected recorder of deeds of Pettis County, being reelected in 1948. Since 1952 he has been salesmanager for the Mike O'Connor Motor Co., and its predecessors.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryan and two daughters, Sandra and Carolyn, reside on their farm on Sedalia, route 5. He is a member of the Fifth Street Methodist Church and has taken an interest in civic affairs.

Edw. Callis (R) For Western Judge

Judge Edw. Callis is a Republican candidate to succeed himself as judge on the Pettis County Court from the western district, a position he has filled since Jan. 1, 1945.

An active farmer and an advocate of good roads, Judge Callis is proud of his record of service on the bench and believes he has helped greatly in an improvement program for county roads and has demonstrated his interest in public welfare. He voted for and helped organize Buena Vista as a county home for older people and has seen to its support.

A heavy taxpayer himself, he states he is interested in and has worked for a sound administration of county finances.

Everett White (D) For Co. Collector

Everett White, in his first campaign for a public office, is seeking the Democratic nomination for collector of Pettis County. And election day has more significance to him that just the election since it happens to fall on his and Mrs. White's 25 wedding anniversary.

The pronghorn antelope sheds and renews its horn covers every year.

Addison Taylor Jr. (D) For County Clerk

In 1938 he was made office manager for a St. Louis shoe manufacturer and in 1941 enlisted in the army. Negro Children Pick Cotton Vacations Instead of Integration

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — Cotton vacations won out over integration by a vote of 11 to 3 last night when the choice was put up to Negro children by officials of the public school system.

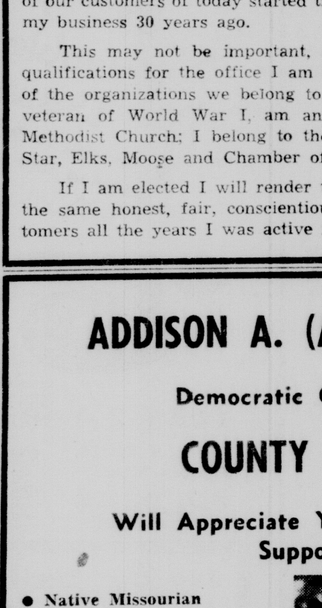

But Byron Masterson, superintendent of school, said the minority of three will be permitted to attend the previously all-white Kennett high school.

The other 11 Negro high school pupils will continue to attend the all-Negro high school at nearby Hayti, where a six-week vacation is declared each fall so that the children may earn money by helping with the cotton crop harvest.

The Kennett high school has no cotton vacation, but many of the public schools in this southeastern Missouri area do.

School officials had said before the meeting with the Negro children and their parents that the Negro children would have to make their decision as a group. They changed their mind when the opposing desires of the children became evident.

UEL HOWERTON

Democrat Candidate for COUNTY JUDGE EASTERN DISTRICT

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS:

This advertisement is being run in an effort to acquaint you with my candidacy for County Judge of the Eastern District. I have tried to contact every voter in this district and while I have talked to many I find that it is virtually impossible to see everyone. Whatever the outcome of the Primary Election, I want to thank all those I have seen for their courteous treatment of me.

To those I have not been able to contact, I would like to take this opportunity to tell you something about who I am and why I believe I can make you a good public official.

I have been in business in Sedalia for 30 years—operating a filling station and garage at 16th and Grand. My son is operating it at present. For the past year I have been a salesman for Bryant Motor Company, selling auto parts. I resigned the first of July. I take a great deal of pride in the fact that some of our customers of today started trading with me when I opened my business 30 years ago.

This may not be important, and may be no index to my qualifications for the office I am seeking, but we are all proud of the organizations we belong to, so I list mine here: I am a veteran of World War I, am an active member of the First Methodist Church; I belong to the Masonic Lodge, the Eastern Star, Elks, Moose and Chamber of Commerce.

If I am elected I will render to the people of Pettis County the same honest, fair, conscientious service I gave to my customers all the years I was active in our garage and station.

Subject to Democratic Primary August 3, 1954

HARVEY D. DOW REPORTS —

As the present encumbent of the office of Representative of Pettis County in the present General 67th Assembly, which consisted of regular session, January to May 31, 1953; a First Extra Session, October 19 to 24, 1954, to authorize the Governor to provide hay and roughness for livestock due to drought areas; and a Second Extra Session February 23, 1954, to April 23, 1954, to complete the legislative processes.

Reporting to the people of the City of Sedalia and Pettis County, as a candidate for re-nomination and election at the Primary, Tuesday, August 3, and the General Election, Tuesday, November 2, 1954.

My election in 1952 as a candidate on the Republican ticket, it seems right and proper to refresh the principles then espoused, in part as follows:

The Republican party is the historical champion of free labor. Under Republican administrations American manufacturing developed and American workers attained the most progressive standards of living of any workers in the world. Now the Nation owes those workers a debt of gratitude for their magnificent productive effort in support of the Republic in war. (p. 507-1945-1946.)

We affirm our belief in the Bill of Rights, in our Federal and State Constitutions and believe that any attempt to nullify them and their guarantees should be vigorously and immediately stopped.

We believe that all Federal Bureaus created to aid in the war effort should be abolished.

We believe that such government bureaus that remain should be stripped of their questionable qusi-legislative powers and be forced to live up to the letter of the laws enacted by Congress.

We hold that due process of law is the strong arm of justice in the enforcement of the law of the land.

We believe in the inalienable rights of both capital and labor. The right of capital to its place in our economy, and the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively for the production and advancement of its individual members.

We are of the firm opinion that practically all of the differences between capital and labor could be settled amicably through the good old American custom of roundtable discussions. We believe that much of the strife between capital and labor has been caused by self-seeking politicians and so-called labor leaders, who seek to use the Hitlerian method to divide and conquer. We oppose any efforts of politicians or anyone else to start class warfare, either economic or physical, in this nation which is founded and has prospered on the belief that all men are created free and equal.

We hold that under the principles on which this nation was founded that all men and women should have an equal opportunity to employment, regardless of race, creed or color. And that any attempt to differentiate between the citizens of this nation because of race or creed or color is definitely un-American and has no place in our way of life. We condemn any attempt by so-called liberals to stir up strife between citizens of different color, creeds and races for political advantage. (1947-1948 Man. 920)

Some of the problems being local, secure futher local government for the individual who knows no substitute for work and experience.

Equality before the law on the safety and use of our highways.

Maintain the Golden Mean, means equal opportunity for all.

Secure to the accused the right to appear and defend in person and by counsel as provided in the Constitution with Special Privileges to none.

In the field of legislation are many problems in the public interest: To strengthen the public welfare: Promote interest in local developments, public relations, trade and commerce and needs of the public schools: Fair Taxation — abolish double taxation and abolish the State Income Tax, a stumbling block to progress and prosperity of the middle brackets: To oppose oppressive impositions on wages and earnings tax, more likely to stimulate bracket relief to the worker.

FLOATING THE POINT—This perlon life jacket, manufactured in Hamburg, Germany, could keep many hot card players cool. Two girls and their escorts calmly pursue their game while wearing the special outfit. When not inflated, the lifesaving vests are carried in a purse or small bag.

Chimps Help Air Force With High Speed Flight

ST. LOUIS, July 23 (AP)—Three retired chimpanzee actors from the St. Louis zoo whoo joined the Navy to help it find out more about the stresses of high-speed flight today were praised for their service.

Tony, the last of the roo's old thespians to be recruited, left by plane today for the Aviation Medical Acceleration Laboratory at the Naval Air Development Center in Johnsville, Pa.

There he will join fellow actors Alice and Ichabod, who have been riding the Navy's 180-ton gondola, which is equipped like an aircraft cockpit.

Capt. Charles F. Gell, laboratory director, said, "We have enlisted the chimpanzees because they can stand acceleration stresses two and a half times what a human being can stand."

Capt. Gell said, "The Chimpanzees are doing a great service for the Navy."

"The Navy has no plans for a chimpanzee pilot-training program," he added, "but they may receive some kind of relative rank."

There is no such thing as a race of albinos.

"The Indian and the Panther," by Henry Kirke Brown, was the first bronze sculpture to be cast in the United States.

Cary Grant Makes Wacky

HOLLYWOOD, July 24 (AP)—Cary Grant, probably the screen's greatest master of wacky but sophisticated comedy, is often asked why he doesn't make more of that type of movie.

He is making an Alfred Hitchcock suspense thriller, "To Catch a Thief." It has its lighter moments but it's not the type that Grant was famous for a decade or more ago. The emphasis is mostly on suspense a la Hitchcock.

"I'd like to make more the so-called sophisticated comedies," says Grant. "But they don't seem to be written any more."

"Comedy today," he adds, "instead of being delicate and sophisticated seems to be only broad and obvious, even cruel. No one is to blame really. Today's comedy writers are for the most part young fellows who have lived either in actual war or under the threat of war.

"They haven't known the luxury of gracious living, if you'll pardon the phrase. Me, I long for the return of droll, tongue-in-cheek comedy; drawing room comedy if you like, where the art of conversation is an important factor. . ."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Humphrey Bogart is fed up with actors who constantly belittle their own profession.

"Acting is a tough racket," says Hollywood's great nonconformist. "These characters who are always talking about 'little old lucky me' are just sounding off for publicity's sake. They know it looks good in print.

"Personally, I say it's pure bunk. They don't believe it anymore than I do."

Bogie is now teamed with Joan Bennett, Aldo Ray and Peter Ustinov in "We're No Angels," a comedy.

"I love what I'm doing," expounded Bogart as he loafed between takes on the Paramount lot. "Who wouldn't love this for the pay I'm getting?"

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Columbia Pictures, which just happens to be making a picture called "Joseph and His Brethren," reports that its research turns up the fact that Joseph is the world's most popular given name.

Other facts turned up by the studio's researchers:

The name, despite its religious origin, is most prevalent in non-religious Communist Russia. All good party members apparently wanted to name their offspring after Joe Stalin.

Sweden, which prefers Axel, has fewer Joes than any other country in christendom.

Court Has First Case Arising From Curfew Law in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mrs. Catherine Hobbs, 47-year-old mother, was placed on probation by City Judge Robert G. Dowd yesterday in the first court case growing out of St. Louis' curfew law.

The judge said he reluctantly found her "technically guilty" under the law, which makes parents liable to fine if their children violate the law after an initial warning is issued.

Mrs. Hobbs, who said her son refused to obey her orders to stay home at night, told the judge she was separated from her husband and worked to support her children. Judge Dowd stayed a fine which he could have levied under the law.

The 15-year-old boy promised to stay home nights after being admonished by the judge in court.

The law prohibits children from being on the streets after 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight on Fridays and Saturdays.

Miss USA Wins World Beauty Contest Title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A freckled daughter of the Confederacy, who has more curves than the Dixie highway, today holds the twin titles of Miss U. S. A. and Miss Universe.

Miriam Stevenson, a 21-year-old college senior from Winnsboro, S. C., last night made the first grand sweep in the three-year history of the international beauty contest.

Runners - up to the winsome Southern lass were Maria Martha Rocha of Brazil, Virginia June Lee of Hong Kong, Regina Ernst of Bremen, Germany, and Ragnhild Clausson of Sweden—in that order.

Miss Kathryn Ries Finally Meets Her Pen Pal of 13 Years

In 1941 Miss Kathryn Ries, 1426 South Carr, noticed in the "Pen Pal Column" of her church paper where a girl in Cleveland wanted a pen pal, and so she wrote a letter. She had other pen pals at various times, but the correspondence ended after a time, maybe a year or so or less, but not with Ruth.

The two girls learned a great deal about each other, about their towns, their families, their friends and now and then they would send pictures of themselves to each other.

A few years ago Ruth was married to Elmer Heinal and of course she told Kathryn all about Elmer, about her wedding and later about her little boys. They felt very close because they had become such good friends through their letters, but they never met. Once Ruth had planned to come by Sedalia and see Kathryn when she was on a trip, but it was at the time of a terrible ice storm and she couldn't make it.

It had been 13 years since they first started writing to each other and now Kathryn's vacation was nearing an end. If she didn't go to Cleveland this year she would have to wait another whole year and so she made he plans for a trip to Cleveland.

When she reached Cleveland a young woman came toward her. "Are you Kathryn?" she asked.

"Yes," said Kathryn, "And you're Ruth."

The next several days, all that was left of Kathryn's vacation were happy ones for the two and Kathryn enjoyed Ruth's family, too. In fact the days were a little too short for both of them, but Kathryn had to get back home. Now their letters will be still more interesting because they have met, but they hope it won't take them 13 years to see each other again.

Corn And Wheat Supply Largest Ever July 1

WASHINGTON, July 23—(AP)—Stocks of wheat and corn in storage July 1 were the largest on record, the Agriculture Department reported today.

Wheat stocks totaled about 903 million bushels, about 43 per cent larger than the previous record for July 1. Corn stocks amounted to 1,400,000,000 bushels, exceeding the previous high for July 1 by 22 million bushels.

Carryovers of oats and barley, however, were smaller than in most of the 12 years of record.

Total tonnage of feed grains was one tenth larger than a year ago and the largest for July 1 in the 12 years for which data are available, but only 2 per cent more than in 1950.

The previous July 1 wheat carry-over record was 651 million bushels in 1942. A year ago stocks of old wheat were 562 million bushels.

Wheat in storage on and off farms included these states in millions of bushels: Missouri 43,764.

Twelve Young Objectors Take Food Tests

DENVER (AP)—Two Kansans are among twelve young men, religiously opposed to war, who will start a diet this fall on food exposed to atomic radiation.

They're volunteers. Their care and quarters will be the best. They will be paid $5 a day.

The Selective Service system announced the year-long project yesterday. It said seven of the 12 men already have been selected from among the volunteers.

Tests will start here in mid-September at the Medical Nutrition Laboratory of the Army Medical Service and Quartermaster Corps at Fitzsimons hospital. Col. Robert Ryer, who commands the laboratory, said rats have been fed irridiated foods at the laboratory since March and none has shown ill effects.

The seven human guinea pigs screened through rigid physical tests include John W. Kroeker, 22, Inman, Kas., and Arlie M. Thiessen, 21, Conway, Kas.

All were classified as conscientious objectors by local draft boards because of their religious training and belief.

Explaining the project, Ryer said the tests have these objectives:

1. Better understanding of human nutritional needs.
2. Determining the nutritive value of foods exposed to ionizing radiations.
3. Developing better methods of preserving perishables.

The colonel said food used in the tests will be exposed by the Atomic Energy Commission at Idaho Falls, Idaho. He said the food will be completly inert.

If the tests endanger or impair their health, the men will be removed from the experiment and given all possible care.

Tells Legion That Red Danger Is From Apathy

KANSAS CITY, July 23—(AP)—Missouri Legionnaires were told by their national chaplain at the opening of the annual state convention today that one of the great dangers in communism is the apathy of the American people.

Dr. Tom Benjamin Clark, of Buffalo, Okla., said he "didn't like the idea of rotten apples rolling around among the good ones."

Dr. Clark said that as early as 1928 when he was in Los Angeles he had attended Communist meetings, had witnessed the burning and tearing of the American flag and other anti-American activities. He was at the meetings, he said, often with government officials as an observer.

"The greatest bulwark against communism is sounding ourselves out to determine those principles in which we can believe, and then adhere to them," he declared.

Dr. Clark said that perhaps the "most fertile" field is "that group of individuals who have no firm convictions concerning religion, politics or other matters."

Smith Describes Indochina Peace 'Best Possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith, who represented the United States at the Geneva conference, said today the Indochina peace settlement was "the best which we could have possibly obtained under the circumstances."

Smith made the statement at the airport after flying back to report to President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles on the Geneva meeting, as well as the talks he had in London last night with Prime Minister Churchill.

The United States and Britain are making plans in consultation with other friendly governments, for an international conferece in about a moth to draft a Southeast Asia defense pact.

The Indochina settlement divided the state of Viet Nam between the Communists and non-Communists and left Laos and Cambodia under their present government.

Smith was asked whether he thought, as some congressional critics have suggested, that the peace agreement was a kind of Far Eastern "Munich." This referred to an agreement reached by the Western powers at Munich before World War II in an effort to block Hitler's further conquest by bowing to some of his demands.

"Munich," Smith growled, "is a damn poor term. At Munich things were given away when there was no fighting. This is a war."

Joan Drew and Paul Kelly have starring roles with Lewis Hayward and Maureen O'Sullivan in the crime melodrama, "Duffy of San Quentin," opening today and playing through Tuesday at the Uptown Theatre. The picture is based on the personal experiences of Warden Clinton T. Duffy as set forth in the best seller the "San Quentin Story." As for the other feature: The story of the most unforgetable man you ever met and a picture you will long remember. Mark Stevens as "Jack Slade" with Dorothy Malone, Barton McLane and John Litel.

Army Signal Corps Studying Television As Means to Speed Training of Soldiers

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

CAMP GORDON, Ga.—(NEA)—Television is due to become a major aid in the training of servicemen.

And in the event of of an all-out mobilization, TV would greatly speed up the gigantic job of turning civilians into fighting men.

That is the opinion of the officers in charge of the Army Signal Corps' basic research program exploring TV as a means for improving educational and instruction techniques.

The work being done here in actual classes of the Signal Corps school has attracted the attention of educators all over the U. S. who are trying to improve civilian educational TV methods.

Here are some of the findings. TV instructors keeps the attention of the class better than live teaching and training films, although some live instruction is still necessary TV also keeps side distractions to a minimum, the eye fixed on the instructor and the ear glued to his words.

As a result, tests show that much more information is retained from a TV class.

As long as all students can see the screen, it doesn't make a great deal of difference how large it is. A 21-inch screen has been found satisfactory for classes of from 15 to 20 persons.

Through video, one teacher can handle any number of classes. With just a few hours rehearsal and the use of prompting devices, almost any person who is reasonably at ease in front of a camera can be an excellent teacher.

TV has several advantages over training films. The TV classroom can be kept light, permitting the taking of notes. TV classes are also easier to kinescope for future use, are more flexible for improvement than regular training films, and can be kept up to date easier.

It has also been found that when the students of lower intelligence review parts of courses by watching replays of kinescopes their grades on exams jump to the level of the most intelligent.

Because the TV course is flexible the education experts here have been able to cut the length of most of the standard courses from one-third to one-half. The students end up getting 50 per cent better grades.

Real Gone Rabbits—

One Vial of Virus Is Killing Off Bunny Population of France

By Rosette Hargrove
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS—It won't be long now before white-tailed Brer Rabbit will have ceased to exist in France.

It took only two years and one vial of the dread Sanarelli virus to exterminate the rabbit population in 70 out of 87 departments, and experts believe that by the end of 1954 there won't be a wild rabbit left in this country.

The person responsible for this devastating germ warfare is an eminent Parisian doctor, 70-plus Professor Armand Delille.

Owner of a chateau surrounded by woods 60 miles from Paris, his property was the happy hunting-ground of rabbits. He decided to get rid of them by innoculating a half score of them with "myxomatosis," a disease which had appeared in South American hutches at the end of the last century.

Delille's experiment proved more than successful. Within 12 months the disease had spread with lightning rapidity. It crossed the frontiers and attacked successively the rabbit populations in Germany, Holland, Belgium, Luxemburg, Spain, and even England.

Throughout rural France, opinion is divided Certain farmers are all in favor of the action of the man, whose opponents call him "The Sorcerer's Apprentice." Those in favor say: "Rabbits destroyed our crops. Since they have disappeared we can sleep in peace."

Dr. Delille declares, "My chateau is enclosed in high walls. I had the right privately to make an experiment." But the fact remains that "operation myxomatosis" has already ruined several enterprises and may even yet destroy every wild rabbit in the world.

Rabbit is a current item of food in European countries. The disappearance of this animal from the family table represents a revenue of somewhere around 20 billion francs. Dealers in rabbits kins and the hat industry represent another nine billion. Revenue from shooting permits and sales of guns and ammunition has fallen.

The "myxomatosis" war is well under way. Recently Professor Delille was assigned to appear before the court in the town of Dreux to defend his case.

In France, there seems to be no way of braking the epidemic. According to the International Office of Epizootics, anybody and everybody can transmit it.

An automobile running over a rabbit can carry the pathogenic agent tens or hundreds of miles, as the case may be. Insects and birds, especially crows, also are carriers. Birds are said to be responsible for the disappearance of rabbits in British woods.

In England there are many landowners who are ready to erect a statue to Delillt. But what the verdict will be in France against the man who has unwittingly caused the destruction of tens of millions of wild rabbits is as yet in the lap of the courts.

Amphibians at Wholesale

CHICAGO (AP) — For 60 years the Chicago Natural History Museum has been getting African frogs and toads for study — buying, bartering and collecting. Now it has one single shipment of 77,000 —more than it has acquired in the previous 60 years.

Dr. Victor Van Straelen, director of the l'Institut des Parcs Nationaux de Congo Belge send them, carefully packed in crated five gallon milk cans with the request that Dr. Karl .P Schmidt, chief curator of zoology at the museum, prepare a report on them.

Detective's Daughter Catches Purse Thief

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gloria Klopmeyer gave chase in a manner befitting the daughter of a detective sergeant when a thief grabbed her wallet containing $80 from a desk in her 19th floor office yesterday.

She trapped the man and recovered the money by using her head—and an elevator.

Miss Klopmeyer, a secretary to a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. official, wasn't gaining a step after chasing the Negro down six flights of stairs. She took a nearby elevator and beat him to the ground level.

There the chase resumed, with more help joining in. A policeman finally arrested the Negro, who identified himself as Eddie Hudson.

"She can catch a thief better than I can," said the proud father, Detective Sgt. John Klopmeyer.

Tells Congress Of $66 Million Disaster Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told Congress today the federal government has provided $66,683,033 for flood, drought and other disaster relief to the states since Congress authorized the disaster relief program in 1951.

At the same time the President called upon the states to do as much as possible to cope with disasters without federal aid.

Eisenhower said in a report transmitted to Congress that federal disaster operations had been streamlined in his administration by putting them under the federal Civil Defense Administration.

"Use of civil defense forces in the various disaster situations has proven most effective," he said.

"However, state and local governments are still far from being self-sufficient and still require federal assistance even in areas where certain types of disasters tend to recur.

"A study of available state authorities and appropriations designed specifically for disaster relief has been made. This study will be used to encourage state governments to provide legislative authority to cope with disasters as much as possible without federal activity.

"In states where adequate provisions have not been made for disaster authority, the federal Civil Defense Administration will request the governors of such states to present the problem to the next assembly of their state legislatures."

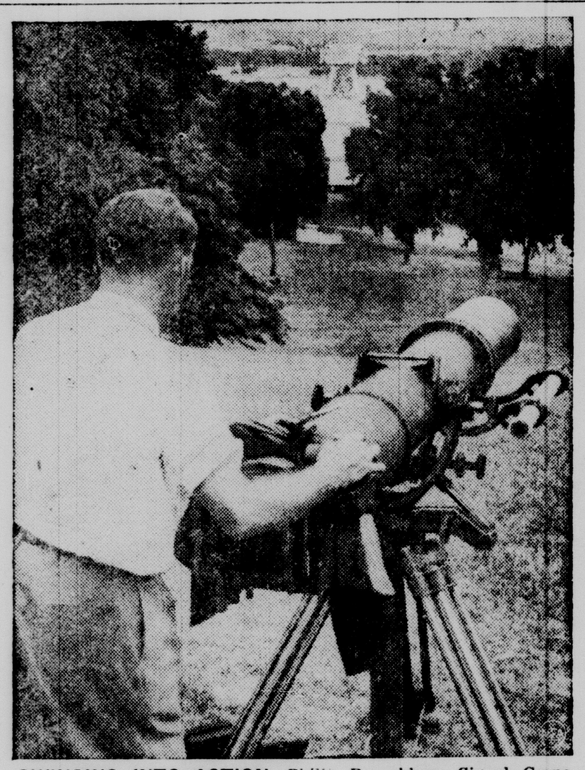

The President reported $35,694,704 was allocated to the Housing and Home Finance Agency for disaster relief prior to his taking office and $30,988,329 to the Civil Defense Administration under the present system of coping with disasters.

Pfc. Stratton Returns Home From Far East

Marine Pfc. Donald L. Stratton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd S. Stratton, 411 South Engineer, and husband of Mrs. Margaret A. Stratton, 717 East 14th, returned to the United States June 13 after 7½ months in the Far East aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Essex.

The Essex docked at the Naval Aid Station this morning after steaming over 57,600 miles during her third Far Eastern cruise since being reconditioned in 1951.

Weather Balloon Lands at Ionia

A weather balloon probably released from the Sedalia Air Force Base about two days ago, landed Thursday morning on the farm of Herbert Steffens at Ionia. Its original size was estimated at about 150 feet in diameter.

Attached to it were two postcards requesting that the cards be mailed to an Air Force office in St. Paul, Minn. The cards were issued from what apparently is a headquarters office in Massachusetts. The cards were mailed to St. Paul that same morning by Bill Davis.

A call to the SAFB disclosed that such a balloon was released by the Moby Dick Squadron there about two days ago. There is no other similar source in this vicinity.

Gets Parking Ticket Before Being Judge

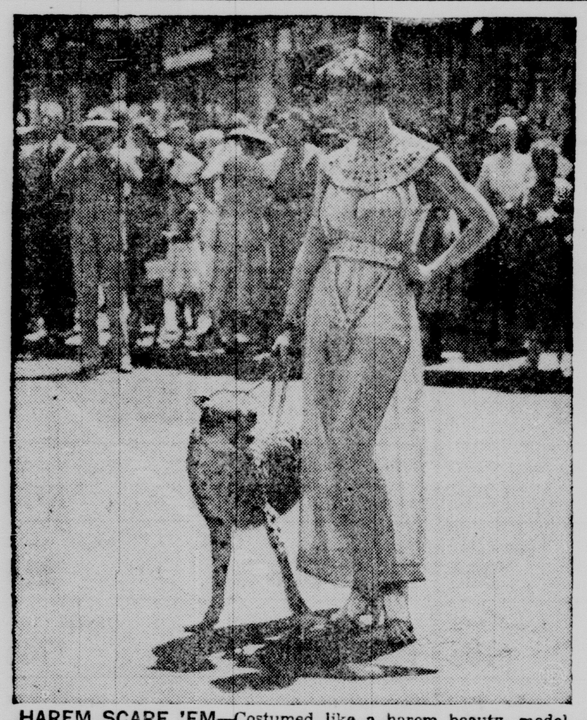

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Joseph M. Walsh found a parking ticket on his car after sitting in on City Court proceedings yesterday prior to taking over as provisional judge next week.

The lawyer had accepted an invitation from Judge Robert G. Dowd to familiarize himself with court procedures. He parked his car outside the building and put two nickels in the parking meter.

After court Walsh found his meter time had expired and the ticket waiting for him.

Said Walsh:

"I'm paying $1 to learn to be a good traffic judge next week."

Traffic Accidents Cost $4 Billions Yearly in Nation

Traffic accidents in the United States cost nearly four billion dollars annually besides the hours of pain and suffering by more than one and a third million people. These gigantic figures do not tell of the grief and sorrow experienced by the families and loved ones of the more than 38,000 who were killed in traffic accidents last year.

Missouri's contribution to this death tool was 1,019. An average of 85 deaths each month to be accounted for by thoughtless, negligent and discourteous driving habits.

The Missouri Highway Patrol safety bureau thinks there is something amiss when such an aggravation of highway fatalities arouses so little public resentment. Capt. John A. Berglund, in charge of the safety bureau says, "If 85 Missourians were being killed each month by any other cause, public resentment would certainly flare.

For some reason the public has failed to consider the seriousness of operating a motor vehicle. Too many mdiocre drivers believe they are good drivers, and far too many drivers readily recognize driving errors of others but do not realize that they are habitually making the same error.

Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, says, "There is a dire need for the individual to recognize the seriousness of Missouri's traffic problem and to make careless and discourteous driving unpopular by banding together in community groups to further safety on Missouri highways.

WELCOME—A German shepherd, with her own litter at her side, welcomes a two-day-old lion cub to her family. The cub, held by Dr. Ado Brogini, of Rome, Italy's zoo, was refused a home by her mother, so the zoo started a search for a female dog who would adopt the lion cub. The first meeting was successful.

Mother Is On Probation

ST. LOUIS, July 23—(AP)—City Judge Robert G. Dowd today placed a 47-year-old mother on probation in the first court case growing out of St. Louis' curfew law.

Judge Dowd stayed a fine under the law against Mrs. Catherine Hobbs when she told him her son refused to obey her orders to stay home at night. Mrs. Hobbs said she was separated from her husband and worked to support her children.

The judge said he reluctantly found her "technically guilty" under the law, which makes parents liable to fine if their children violate the law after an initial warning is issued.

The law prohibits children from being on the streets after 11 p. m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight on Fridays and Saturdays.
